Youth Symphony Helps On Way To Violin Career

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln music student who has her eye on a career as a professional violinist has high praise for the Lincoln Youth Symphony and its effect on her own abilities.

"Immensely helpful" was the way Sheila Evans described the symphony's role in her own growth as a musician. "It's really not new," pointing to the baroque era's use of the repetitive base and harmonies.

A violinist for the past seven years, Sheila is also boosting her own musical endeavors with three music courses at Nebraska Wesleyan University, where she has been a member of the university orchestra for three years.

This year, the symphony has slightly less than 100 members, all junior and senior high school students picked in special auditions. The youths practice on Saturday mornings during the school year, and those rehearsals culminate each spring in the annual concert, to be presented at 7:30 p.m. May 11 at East High School.

Concerts Next Week

Two concerts also presented yearly to acquaint fifth graders with the symphony and its instruments will be given next week — at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Irving Junior High and at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at Whittier.

Sheila said playing with the symphony, which is nearing its 15th year, helps keep up her interest by playing "better music" than the high school orchestras tackle.

And keen competition, she said, helps her push herself to improve as a symphony member. "Everybody is really good," she said.

Sheila also said the symphony provides an opportunity to keep alive classical music in the student community and in the community at large.

"Music is a part of any culture," she noted. "Classical music is still important."

Likes Rock

How does a young person with a strong interest in classical music view today's popular strains?

"I like rock music very much," Sheila said. But she said she believes "it's really not new," pointing to the baroque era's use of the repetitive base and harmonies.

A violinist for the past seven years, Sheila is also boosting her own musical endeavors with three music courses at Nebraska Wesleyan University, where she has been a member of the university orchestra for three years.

With her high school required courses behind her, she spends her early morning hours at Wesleyan and takes elective courses at Northeast the remainder of the day.

Next year she will attend Wesleyan, where her father, Dr. Milton Evans, is dean of students. She said she will major in both music and political science ("in case the music doesn't work out.")

"If I don't get good enough" to be a professional musician, she said, "I'll be a lawyer."

At the moment, however, her main interest is the violin.

And Lincolnites will have an opportunity to hear the fruits of that effort at the Youth Symphony concert and when Sheila solos with the Northeast Orchestra on May 14.

AIR STANDARDS ORDERED

Conspiracy Indictment Expanded

Harrisburg, Pa. (AP) — A married former nun and the son of a college president were indicted Friday as additional defendants in an alleged conspiracy to kidnap a presidential adviser, dynamite Washington heating tunnels and destroy draft records across the nation.

A new 10-count indictment from the investigating grand jury replaces one handed down last Jan. 12. But it retained the six original defendants headed by the Rev. Phillip Berrigan, now serving eight years for burning files in a Selective Service office in Catonsville, Md.

Specifically, the government alleges the conspiracy was masterminded by Berrigan to call attention to antiwar views and to force American withdrawal from Vietnam. It charges the scheme was plotted from Berrigan's cell in the Lewisburg, Pa., penitentiary where he was held last summer.

Defendant Fasting

Named as defendants Friday were:

—Mary Cain Soblick, 32, Baltimore. She is the wife of a former priest, Anthony Soblick, who already is a defendant. Soblick has been fasting on the steps of the federal building in Harrisburg while the grand jury continued its probe of antiwar activities.

—John Theodore Glick, 21, Lancaster, Pa., now serving an 18-month prison sentence for ransacking offices of the FBI, U.S. Attorney and Selective Service in Rochester, N.Y., last September. His father is president of Keuka (N.Y.) College.

Besides Berrigan and Soblick those indicted were:

—The Revs. Neil Raymond McLaughlin, 30, and Joseph R. Wenderoth, 31, both Baltimore priests.

Pakistani Student

—Sister Elizabeth McAlister, 31, on leave as a faculty member at Marymount College, Tarrytown, N.Y.

—Eqbal Ahmad, 40, Chicago, a Pakistani graduate student. The original indictment named seven coconspirators, but three were dropped in the broadened version of the charges.

Former Monk

They were the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, brother of Philip, also convicted of destroying draft records; Paul Mayer, a 32-year-old married former monk from New York; and Thomas Davidson, 25, Salina, Kan., an antiwar activist.

The Berrigans now are serving their sentences at the Denbury (Conn.) Correctional Institution. Glick is in prison in Ashland, Ky.

Renamed as coconspirators but not defendants were three nuns — Sister Beverly Bell, 43, Washington, D.C.; Sister Marjorie Shuman, 47, Washington, and Sister Jogues Egan, 52, former president of Marymount College — and William Davidson, 43, a physics professor at Haverford (Pa.) College.

Allegations Repeated Specifically, the new indictment repeats allegations that the defendants conspired to kidnap Henry Kissinger, foreign affairs aide to President Nixon, and hold him until the United States ends its involvement in the Vietnam War.

It also charges the defendants planned to dynamite heating tunnels at five locations in Washington, D.C. last Feb. 22, George Washington's birthday, "in order to render the hearing systems in government buildings inoperative."

The new indictment brought in the alleged plans to destroy draft board records in Philadelphia, Wilmington, Del., Dover, Del., Georgetown, Del., and Rochester, N.Y., "as well as elsewhere in the United States."

It charged the defendants planned "to leave antiwar statements and writings on the premises of these Selective Service offices."

Two State College Building Projects OK'd By Committee

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Friday approved planning funds for a classroom-administration building at Kearney State College and a new applied arts building at Wayne State College.

Approval of funds for planning during the 1971-72 fiscal year would lead, it was understood, to construction funding the following year.

The $60,000 for planning at Wayne was added to Gov. J. James Exon's budget recommendations on a 7-1 vote.

Planning Endorsed

Exon had included $95,000 for planning at Kearney, and that proposal was endorsed by the committee.

In a two-hour session Friday, the budget unit approved the governor's capital construction budget recommendations for all other major state agencies except the University of Nebraska and the Game and Parks Commission.

Decisions on those two agencies — and the State Historical Society — will be made Monday, Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings said.

Exon's total capital construction recommendations for fiscal 1971-72 are a frugal $5,489,308.

Largest Project

The largest project in the list endorsed by the committee thus far is a food service facility at the Beatrice State Home carrying a price tag of $675,000.

The classroom-administration building programed for Kearney would eventually cost $1.9 million.

The committee decided to write a $1.2 million construction funding limit on the Wayne facility.

Kearney Library

Also approved by the committee was the governor's recommendation for $82,000 to prepare for a library addition at Kearney.

The college requested $15 million for the project, but the governor provided no construction funds for either fiscal 1971-72 or fiscal 1972-73.

Among projects rejected by both the governor and the committee were a $1.7 million physical education building at Chadron State College, a $1.8 million humanities building at Kearney and a $1.5 million dormitory and food service project at the Nebraska Vocational Technical School at Millard.

Also rejected was a Department of Public Institutions request for $157,500 in planning funds for a new penal complex.

No Fairgrounds Funds

The committee budgeted no construction funds for improvements at the State Fairgrounds in view of the enactment of LB387, the bill increasing the state cigarette tax.

Under the provisions of that bill, the University of Nebraska will reimburse the State Board of Agriculture for the use of Fairgrounds space to construct a new fieldhouse. That reimbursement, it was understood, can be used for improvements at the Fairgrounds.

In other action, the committee heard citizen opposition to the land acquisition plans of the University of Nebraska at Omaha and listened to a plea from the State Historical Society for funding to restore the Neligh Mills historical site.

No action was taken on either matter.

Pollution Curb Called A Must

... EPA CITES HEALTH FACTOR

Washington (UPI) — The government announced strict, nationwide clean air standards Friday, acknowledging they could change commuters' habits and cause higher electric bills when they take effect in 1975.

The new Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued the standards under a 1970 law requiring that air pollution be curbed for the sake of American's health.

EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus told a news conference that many cities would have to sharply restrict auto traffic to meet the standards, which set limits on the permissible amounts of six major pollutants in the air.

Drastic Changes

"We've got to make some changes in transportation systems, in closing hours and when we go to work," Ruckelshaus said.

He said "rapid transit, car pooling and staggered work hours" would be necessary in big cities. "It may even require the closing of some sections of these cities to auto traffic at certain hours," Ruckelshaus said.

He said many electric generating plants would have to switch from high sulfur coal to natural gas or other "clean," higher cost fuels, with "some increase in electric bills" a likely result.

By next Jan. 1, every state must submit implementation plans including emission limits for every industrial facility and, where necessary, traffic restrictions.

By July 1, 1972, EPA must either approve the state plans or impose its own on any recalcitrant states. The plans are required to achieve full compliance with the EPA standard by July 1, 1975.

No statistics have been compiled on total deaths attributed to air pollution. But EPA said pollution crises — usually high levels of industrial emissions trapped by an air inversion — killed 63 in Belgium's Meuse Valley in 1930, 20 in Donora, Pa., in 1948, 200 in New York in 1953, 125 in New York in 1967, and a total of more than 2,000 in London crises of 1952, 1956 and 1961.

6 Categories Covered

The standards cover sulfur oxides, particulate matter, carbon monoxide, photochemical oxidants, nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons and would sharply reduce their current levels as measured in most metropolitan areas.

For example, EPA's limit of 9 parts per million carbon monoxide compares with current city levels of 25 to 40 parts per million, Ruckelshaus said. The particulate matter limit of 75 micrograms per cubic meter compares with current levels up to 186 parts per million.

Ruckelshaus said the levels were set to "protect the health of the most vulnerable segment of the population . . . those citizens already afflicted with cardio-respiratory problems."

He acknowledged that the standards for sulfur oxides and particulates would require new federal fuel policies since natural gas, the likely replacement for coal, already is in short supply.

Appeal Authorized

States, cities or industries can appeal the standards, but only on grounds they failed to meet the clean air act's public health requirements, Ruckelshaus said.

"I don't think they can be successfully challenged so I don't anticipate any delay in their implementation," he said.

Elderly Carroll Man Hit By Car, Fatally Injured

An elderly Carroll man was killed as the result of a car-pedestrian accident Friday evening, the State Patrol reported.

The patrol said the man was crossing Highway 2 at a Carroll intersection when he was struck by an eastbound car driven by a 20-year-old woman.

Names of the people involved are being withheld, the patrol said, pending notification of next of kin.

Poll: Many Lincoln Men Denounce Women's Lib

By WAYNE KREUSCHER
Star Staff Writer

Twenty-two Lincolnites who completed The Star's "What do you think?" questionnaire called the woman's liberation movement "nonsense" or some similar adverse adjective.

Ten people were more kind to the woman's movement — but limited their support only to "equal pay for equal work."

Eight were completely in approval and three had no opinion. The Star's 12-part questionnaire was mailed to 104 Lincolnites and 43 were returned. Admittedly, most of these people were men.

Selections All Men

This was not a male conspiracy, but resulted because all 104 people were selected from the first name of the middle column of every other page in the Lincoln Telephone Directory and most names in the book are those of men.

"It's ridiculous." "Let them have their fun" and "The poor things belong in the home" were some of the comments written in reply to the question "What is your reaction to the woman's liberation movement?"

"The only really happy woman is the one with a good family," one person wrote. "There are too many divorces and broken marriages. Let the women do something about that."

'Should Be Glad'

Another stated, "Women should be glad to be treated as women."

A few agreed with the men who wrote, "Unimportant compared to most problems."

A significant number supported some of the movement's goals — usually equal pay — but thought others had been carried to extremes.

"The only part I agree with is the equal pay. The rest is irrelevant," one wrote.

Another said, "It has called deserved attention to certain serious gaps between the way women are treated relative to men. The antics of some of its proponents are silly and probably counterproductive."

Other Claims 'Unfeminine'

"If a woman is equal to a man in that they do the very same job, equal pay is only fair. But the other advocations are too unfeminine," one stated.

Many who supported part of the cause said they "didn't like the people who 'represent' the movement."

There were some Lincolnites in the survey who completely backed the woman's civil rights crusade.

"I support it," one simply wrote. Another stated, "Women who feel a need to be liberated, have every right to seek it."

"I think it is a good thing," a person commented. "Women need to fight for their rights just as all minority groups do. I agree completely with the liberation movement."

Youth Symphony Helps On Way To Violin Career

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln music student who has her eye on a career as a professional violinist has high praise for the Lincoln Youth Symphony and its effect on her own abilities.

"Immensely helpful" was the way Sheila Evans described the symphony's role in her own growth as a musician. Sheila, a 17-year-old senior at Northeast High School, holds the title of concert mistress for the Youth Symphony, which pulls together the cream of Lincoln's student musical crop.

This year, the symphony has slightly less than 100 members, all junior and senior high school students picked in special auditions.

AIR STANDARDS ORDERED

Conspiracy Indictment Expanded

Harrisburg, Pa. (AP) — A married former nun and the son of a college president were indicted Friday as additional defendants in an alleged conspiracy to kidnap a presidential adviser, dynamite Washington heating tunnels and destroy draft records across the nation.

A new 10-count indictment from the investigating grand jury replaces one handed down last Jan. 12. But it retained the six original defendants headed by the Rev. Phillip Berrigan, now serving eight years for burning files in a Selective Service office in Catonsville, Md.

Specifically, the government alleges the conspiracy was masterminded by Berrigan to call attention to antiwar views and to force American withdrawal from Vietnam. It charges the scheme was plotted from Berrigan's cell in the Lewisburg, Pa., penitentiary where he was held last summer.

Defendant Fasting

Named as defendants Friday were:

—Mary Cain Soblick, 32, Baltimore. She is the wife of a former priest, Anthony Soblick, who already is a defendant. Soblick has been fasting on the steps of the federal building in Harrisburg while the grand jury continued its probe of antiwar activities.

—John Theodore Glick, 21, Lancaster, Pa., now serving an 18-month prison sentence for ransacking offices of the FBI, U.S. Attorney and Selective Service in Rochester, N.Y., last September. His father is president of Keuka (N.Y.) College.

Besides Berrigan and Soblick those reindicted were:

—The Revs. Neil Raymond McLaughlin, 30, and Joseph R. Wenderoth, 31, both Baltimore priests.

Pakistani Student

—Sister Elizabeth McAlister, 31, on leave as a faculty member at Marymount College, Tarrytown, N.Y.

—Egal Ahmad, 40, Chicago, a Pakistani graduate student.

The original indictment named seven coconspirators, but three were dropped in the broadened version of the charges.

Former Monk

They were the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, brother of Phillip, also convicted of destroying draft records; Paul Mayer, a 32-year-old married former monk from New York; and Thomas Davidson, 25, Salina, Kan., an antiwar activist.

The Berrigans now are serving their sentences at the Denbury (Conn.) Correctional Institution. Glick is in prison in Ashland, Ky.

Allegations Repeated

Specifically, the new indictment repeats allegations that the defendants conspired to kidnap Henry Kissinger, foreign affairs aide to President Nixon, and hold him until the United States ends its involvement in the Vietnam War.

It also charges the defendants planned to dynamite heating tunnels at five locations in Washington, D.C. last Feb. 22, George Washington's birthday, "in order to render the hearing systems in government buildings inoperative."

The new indictment brought in the alleged plans to destroy draft board records in Philadelphia, Wilmington, Del., Dover, Del., Georgetown, Del., and Rochester, N.Y., "as well as elsewhere in the United States." It charged the defendants planned "to leave antiwar statements and writings on the premises of these Selective Service offices."

Washington (AP) — The Air Force Friday temporarily grounded all of its F111 aircraft following the 18th crash of the swinging jet fighter-bombers.

This is the second time in about 18 months the Air Force grounded the F111s, plagued for several years by political, production, and operational problems.

Gibbon Man, 21, Dies In One-Car Crash At Hazard

Hazard (AP) — A 21-year-old Gibbon man was killed Friday in a one-car accident south of the junction of Nebraska Highways 2 and 10 near Hazard.

The State Patrol identified the victim as James W. Carter. The patrol said Carter was killed instantly.

State Trooper Duane Woerman said the northbound car apparently went out of control, went off the road, just missed a bridge and went over a ravine, rolling several times before landing on its top.

Woerman said the car traveled a total distance of 618 feet from the point where it went off the road.

The Air Force said investigation showed the recovery chute compartment door failed to separate from the crew escape capsule, making it impossible for the two pilots to parachute free.

In a statement, the Air Force said it "considered it prudent to suspend all F111 flying temporarily" until tests are completed to determine why the recovery chute compartment door failed to work.

Fullerton Woman Killed In Collision

A car-truck accident in Fullerton claimed the life of Maude C. Smith, 78, of Fullerton, Friday afternoon, the State Patrol reported.

Trooper Charles Harris reported the Smith car was west bound on a city street and entered an intersection with Highway 14 when her vehicle was struck by a truck driven by Garry E. Nathan, 25, of Madison.

He said many electric generating plants would have to switch from high sulfur coal to natural gas or other "clean," higher cost fuels, with "some increase in electric bills" a likely result.

By next Jan. 1, every state must submit implementation plans including emission limits for every industrial facility and, where necessary, traffic restrictions.

By July 1, 1972, EPA must either approve the state plans or impose its own on any recalcitrant states. The plans are required to achieve full compliance with the EPA standard by July 1, 1975.

No statistics have been compiled on total deaths attributed to air pollution. But EPA said pollution crises — usually high levels of industrial emissions trapped by an air inversion — killed 63 in Belgium's Meuse Valley in 1930, 20 in Donora, Pa., in 1948, 200 in New York in 1953, 125 in New York in 1967, and a total of more than 2,000 in London crises of 1952, 1956 and 1961.

6 Categories Covered

The standards cover sulfur oxides, particulate matter, carbon monoxide, photochemical oxidants, nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons and would sharply reduce their current levels as measured in most metropolitan areas.

For example, EPA's limit of 9 parts per million carbon monoxide compares with current city levels of 25 to 40 parts per million, Ruckelshaus said. The particulate matter limit of 75 micrograms per cubic meter compares with current levels up to 186 parts per million.

Ruckelshaus said the levels were set to "protect the health of the most vulnerable segment of the population . . . those citizens already afflicted with cardiovascular respiratory problems."

He acknowledged that the standards for sulfur oxides and particulates would require new federal fuel policies since natural gas, the likely replacement for coal, already is in short supply.

Appeal Authorized

States, cities or industries can appeal the standards, but only on grounds they failed to meet the clean air act's public health requirements, Ruckelshaus said.

"I don't think they can be successfully challenged so I don't anticipate any delay in their implementation," he said.

Elderly Carroll Man Hit By Car, Fatally Injured

An elderly Carroll man was killed as the result of a car-pedestrian accident Friday evening, the State Patrol reported.

The patrol said the man was crossing Highway 2 at a Carroll intersection when he was struck by an eastbound car driven by a 20-year-old woman.

Names of the people involved are being withheld, the patrol said, pending notification of next of kin.

Soviet Jews Emigrate In Record Numbers

(C) New York Times News Service
Moscow — Reliable western sources in Moscow said Friday that more than 1,300 Soviet Jews had been allowed to emigrate to Israel so far this month. The number was believed to be the largest for any month since the founding of Israel in 1948. The easier emigration policy began suddenly in March without explanation.

Crisis Continues

Phnom Penh — Cambodia's political crisis continued as Lt. Gen. Sisowath Sirik Matak refused to form a new government and Chuop Hell, personal counselor to chief of state Cheng Heng, was offered the chance in his place. The new designee is considered a politically neutral and unknown quantity. (More On Page 2.)

Taiwan Hits Statement

Taipei — Nationalist China objected to a

State Department description of the sovereignty of Taiwan and the Pescadores Islands as "an unsettled question subject to future international resolution." The minister of foreign affairs said the implication that Taiwan and Peking should negotiate was unthinkable to the point of being absurd.

Drug Withdrawal Limited

Washington — Medicinal drugs will not be withdrawn from the market in large numbers all at once, the commissioner of food and drugs told a House subcommittee. Fears of such a massive withdrawal were raised by a Food and Drug Administration crackdown on fixed-dose combination drugs that have been judged ineffective.

Washington — Limits on the amounts of six principal pollutants in the air were set by William D. Ruchelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, acting under terms of the Clean Air Act of 1970. But Ruchelshaus, who called his standards "tough," acknowledged that only by "drastic" alterations in industrial practices and commuting habits could the standards be achieved by 1975. (More On Page 1.)

Leslie Bacon To Testify

Seattle — The attorneys for Leslie Bacon, the 19-year-old girl held as a material witness in connection with the bombing of the United States Capitol, agreed to let their client testify before the federal grand jury in Seattle after a series of conferences in the offices of the United States Attorney.

Amtrak Objectors Lose

Washington — Refusals by a federal judge and a three-judge appeals court to uphold the objections of railroad unions and passengers groups to the inauguration Saturday of the National Railroad Passenger Corporation paved the way for the Amtrak system and the immediate end of half of the nation's remaining passenger trains. (More On Page 2.)

Pedestrian Mall Planned

New York — Terming the closing of a mid-town section of Madison Avenue for the past two weeks "a spectacular success," Mayor John V. Lindsay announced plans to turn part of the avenue into a permanent pedestrian mall. City officials were told to draw up plans for the project, which will include trees and special lanes for small buses and for trucks.

Nixon Pledges Peace

Camp Pendleton, Calif. — President Nixon,

standing before 1,500 officers and men of the returning First Marine Division and 10,000 spectators, pledged to end the Vietnam war "in a way worthy of your service." Nixon said that the Marines' service will have been a failure if he took "the counsel of those who would have us leave Vietnam, even if it means turning over the country to the Communists."

Six Are Reindicted

Harrisburg — Father Philip Berrigan and five others were reindicted by a federal grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., on charges that they conspired to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger. But the new indictment, which drops Father Daniel Berrigan as a coconspirator, adds two new defendants and says that raids on draft boards were part of an escalating sequence of acts leading to the kidnap attempt. East Pakistan Famine Called Real Possibility

By United Press International

The shadow of impending famine in rebel East Pakistan, especially in the coastal area ravaged by cyclone and tidal wave last November, haunted a Paris meeting Friday of a consortium of 11 nations that have funneled hundreds of millions of aid dollars into Pakistan.

Although well-informed sources described the private meeting as "routine," delegates met for several hours in an atmosphere of urgency engendered by ominous reports from Pakistan's sealed-off Bengali Province. Plans were discussed to continue western financial aid, which was committed to Pakistan before the Bengali uprising, and the possibility of speeding it up.

The meeting was held under the sponsorship of the World Bank and was attended by experts from the United States, Belgium, Canada, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, and Britain. This consultative group recommended last July that members of the consortium supply financially ailing Pakistan with aid totalling $570 million in the fiscal year which will end next July 1.

Aid Not Spent

However, U.S. government officials said in Washington that $7.5 million of American aid earmarked for housing, cyclone shelters and coastal embankments in the cyclone-devastated East Pakistan coastal zone had never been spent because fighting began before reconstruction projects could get under way. Of some 200,000 tons of food grains allotted the cyclone victims by the United States, only 50,000 tons was delivered before East Pakistan made its bid for autonomy March 25. The rest is being held in U.S. ports.

The U.S. State Department said that, nevertheless, it had no reports from East Pakistan of widespread food shortages "except in certain isolated areas." Greater concern was expressed elsewhere, however, especially by independent relief and rehabilitation organizations which had been active in the cyclone area but were forced to leave the Bengali Province when Pakistan troops arrived to suppress the rebels.

These groups claim there has been no food distributed in East Pakistan for five weeks — an especially dire situation for the 4 million Bengalis who were faced with famine as a result of the cyclone and had been on dole ever since. One aid official said there were indications "that food stocks will be completely depleted, especially in the countryside, in two months," but this could not be verified because Pakistan has ousted newsmen from East Pakistan.

Haste Important

"There's a possibility that 30 to 60 million persons may starve," the aid official said. "Food grains in East Pakistan ports, en route, or authorized for future shipment are substantial, if they can only be delivered in time to prevent this tragedy."

International rehabilitation efforts in the storm area, where 75,000 and possibly as many as 300,000 East Pakistanis died, were barely past the planning stage when civil strife broke out. The International Development Association (IDA), the soft-lending affiliate of the World Bank, approved a $25 million credit for reconstruction in the 5,000-square-mile disaster area in January and the Pakistani government pledged $10 million.

The enormity of the task ahead can be realized from the statistics of the storm's toll — 400,000 houses lost, 250,000 head of cattle and 500,000 poultry destroyed, 500,000 tons of agricultural crops ruined and 65% of the area's fishing capacity lost. Miraculously, no epidemic has yet been reported from the area.

Chuop Hell Is Requested To Form A Government

Phnom Penh (AP) — Cambodia's chief of state, after failing twice to find a premier, reached into the ranks of his own staff Friday for a new prospect to form a government.

He is Chuop Hell, 67, an adviser who is unknown abroad but is described as "very charming" by foreign diplomats.

The chief of state, Cheng Heng, called on him after Sisowath Sirik Matak turned down an invitation to try, saying new blood was needed to solve Cambodia's problems. Sirik Matak had served as deputy premier to Marshal Lon Nol and had been in 13 Cabinets during the reign of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, ousted as chief of state in March 1970.

The choice of Chuop Hell came in the 11th day of Cambodia's government crisis. It started on April 20 with Lon Nol resigning as premier because of a stroke that left him partially paralyzed. Cheng Heng asked him, however, to continue to serve as premier but with a new Cabinet. Lon Nol agreed but gave up his efforts to find that Cabinet on Thursday.

Cheng Heng then turned to Sirik Matak, a great grandson of one of Cambodia's kings.

Cheng Heng's communique said the decision to summon Chuop Hell was taken after consultations with National Assembly leaders and the head of the Senate, Ong Sim.

Chuop Hell served as agriculture minister for six months in 1952 and was once president of the National Assembly. He also served in diplomatic posts in Hong Kong and Singapore.

There was speculation the Sirik Matak's move might be the opening gambit in a draft movement and that his resignation was for tactical purposes only.

Amtrak Signals The End Of An Era In History Of American Railroads

Washington (UPI)—The Amtrak rail passenger system assumed control of 184 passenger trains reaching 319 cities at 12:01 A.M. Saturday marking the death of an era in American Railroad history.

The federally subsidized and administered National Railroad Passenger Corp., also known as Amtrak, took responsibility of the passenger trains from 20 participating railroads.

A group of 23 men and women passenger service representatives wearing red, white and blue Amtrak uniforms began climbing aboard trains throughout the system.

A special three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of appeals Friday upheld lower court rejection of three separate lawsuits seeking postponement of the federal government takeover of the railroads' increasingly unprofitable and deteriorating long-haul passenger service.

With the deadline only hours away, opponents abandoned plans to take their fight to the supreme court, clearing the way for control of the passenger trains to pass to the hands of Amtrak.

At 12:01 a.m. unless they were actually in operation at the time, one-third of the nation's 285 intercity passenger trains passed into history, including such famed runs as the San Francisco Chief, the Panama Limited, the Portland Rose, the City of Miami, the Capitol Limited, the Nancy Hanks, the North Coast Limited and the Wabash Cannonball.

As of Saturday only 184 passenger trains are scheduled to be running, compared to the estimated 20,000 that crisscrossed the country a little more than 40 years ago.

In Washington, U.S. District Judge Howard F. Corcoran rejected three lawsuits seeking a delay in the Saturday start of Amtrak operations, citing a "frustration of the intent of Congress and a threat of grave injury to the public and to the railroads" if the requests were granted.

The courts opponents — an association of rail passengers, a group of rail unions and a band of Cumberland, Md., rail commuters who work in Washington — vowed to carry their fight all the way to the Supreme Court as the deadline approached.

The advent of Amtrak was marked by tearful ceremonies and nostalgic last rides, including a shrimp and champagne party aboard the Illinois Central's Panama Limited, once an all-Pullman run between Chicago and New Orleans.

In a salute to the vanishing San Joaquin daylight, serving the San Joaquin Valley, a spike was pulled Friday from the same area of the Southern Pacific rail bed where a final spike was driven Sept. 6, 1876, near Lang, Calif., to inaugurate passenger train service between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

But except for 94 discontinued trains, there will be almost no immediate change in service.

For the next few months, ticketing, credit cards, baggage and other business will be handled by individual carriers as before, until Amtrak officials decide which cars it wants to buy and which employees it will retain to staff trains and ticket offices. Eventually Amtrak will institute a nationwide computerized reservation and ticketing system of its own.

Only three carriers with six trains, the Southern Railway, Rock Island and the Denver and Rio Grande Western Lines, have chosen not to join the 19 lines which contracted with Amtrak for federal subsidies to operate their trains. A fourth carrier, the Burlington Northern, is under a temporary federal court order to continue one passenger train, out of Chicago.

B52 Bombers Keep Up Heavy Attack On Trail

Saigon (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers flew missions in South Vietnam's northern sector for the third straight day on Friday, aiming bomb drops at dirt roads and trails used by the enemy to move in supplies in advance of oncoming monsoons.

Allied officers reported no special increase in truck traffic but said considerable work is being done on road repair—"corduroy activity," meaning the placing of logs and bamboo across muddy roads.

Four flights of the eight-engine jets — a total of 12 planes — unloaded 360 tons of explosives on the infiltration corridors along the demilitarized zone and on suspected North Vietnamese troop concentrations and bunkers on the eastern edge of the A Shau Valley. The demilitarized zone, or DMZ, divides the two Vietnams.

The target area in the northwest corner of South Vietnam, immediately below the DMZ and just east of Laos, is a section where numerous outlets of the Ho Chi Minh Trail feed into South Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese are reported continuing to use the dirt roads and trails to move supplies southward in advance of the monsoon rains soon to start in southern Laos.

Other B52s hit at the Ho Chi Minh Trail itself in the Laos panhandle, concentrating on the vicinity of Sepone where several roads and trails converge into a major transshipment juncture. Sepone was one of the targets of South Vietnam's incursion into Laos in February and March.

The B52 raids are part of the longest and heaviest U.S. bombing campaign of the war, and aerial assault on the Ho Chi Minh Trail that began in mid-October.

School Bus, Car Crash Kills One, Hospitalizes 3

Cool Heads Prevailed Amidst Sudden Tragedy

Arapahoe — Tragedy struck an unsuspecting bus load of Arapahoe school students Friday, killing one woman, injuring the bus driver and two students seriously.

The victim was Mrs. Henry Helms Jr., 42, Arapahoe, driver of a car which collided with the bus at an intersection on a rural road just off U.S. 283 in Gosper County, 5.2 miles north of Arapahoe.

Bus driver Richard Schmid, 47, was hospitalized along with Mrs. Helms daughter, Rhonda, 16, who was riding in the car with her. One student who was riding the bus, Tony Anderson, 15, also was hospitalized for severe cuts.

Amidst the scene of shock and terror, cool heads prevailed.

Opened Emergency Door

Neal Monter, 15, a freshman at Arapahoe High School, flung open the rear emergency door of the overturned bus to permit himself, the driver and 12 other passengers to disembark, witnesses said.

Monter then grabbed a fire extinguisher and with the aid of other students flinging mud at the bus extinguished flames which had broken out on its underside.

"I'm awfully proud of them," Schmid said later Friday. "They were awfully shook up, but they used good sense."

Mrs. Herb Walker lives just a short distance from the scene of the crash. She was still in bed at the time of the 7:55 a.m. crash.

"It was a terribly loud crash," she said. "It sounded like somebody had cut down a big tree."

Within moments she was at the scene aiding the accident victims.

'Bleeding Badly'

"They brought the children here to my house," she said. "We put one boy (Anderson) on the davenport. He was bleeding so badly that the pillow under his head was saturated. Another boy had blood around his eyes," she said.

She said Schmid "had a knot on his head and his neck and his back hurt."

"The little kiddies sure kept their heads," she related.

"There were touching scenes too, like the little girl who lost the show and tell article she was bringing to school, but mostly worried about her older brother who had been hurt."

Arapahoe High School Principal Dale Poole, who came upon the scene in his own car, said "It could have been worse. When I topped that rise and saw the wreck, the first thing I thought was 'how could anybody be alive?'"

Jane Wendland, one of the students on the bus, said there was no advance warning. "I didn't know anything was wrong until I was thrown down and we started to bounce around. Neal Monter got the emergency door open and helped us all out."

One Hump To Get Over

Omaha's Henry Doorly Zoo has a new baby — a wobbly-legged, furry 40-pound male camel. Standing 4 1/2 feet high, the new camel has been declining feeding since its birth Thursday. Forced feedings are planned if necessary. The mother arrived at the zoo last Aug. 11.

Reed Bound Over For Attempted Holdup Of Bank

Omaha (AP)—Ronald L. Reed, 20, St. Paul, Minn., has been bound over for trial in the attempted holdup of the Ames Plaza Bank last Oct. 20. His bond of $50,000 was continued at his preliminary hearing.

Police Sgt. William Tate identified Reed at the hearing as the man who fired a carbine during the holdup attempt.

Tate was wounded by a shotgun blast from another holdup man during the attempted robbery. Tate was working as an off-duty security guard at the time.

Girl Facing Manslaughter

In Reilly Death

Omaha (AP)—A 17-year-old girl has been charged with manslaughter and a 14-year-old girl has been referred to Juvenile Court in connection with the death Wednesday of an elderly man who police said was beaten at his home April 13.

Roseanne Birdhead, 17, was charged in connection with the death of James Reilly, 85, who died at an Omaha hospital.

Acting Douglas County Coroner George Sullivan said he had not received a report of an autopsy performed on Reilly.

Police said doctors told them the man probably died from a blood clot on the brain, which may have been caused by a blow.

Officers said Reilly reported on April 16 that he had been beaten by a woman after he asked her to pay back five dollars she owed him. He declined to prosecute, police said, and never identified the girls.

Suffered Bruises

Reilly suffered bruises to both eyes, his forehead and chest.

Police said they arrested the two girls and the mother of the 17-year-old Wednesday after obtaining information from persons who live near Reilly's home.

Playhouse 'Apple Tree' 'Masterful' Final Show

By MILAN WALL Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Community Playhouse has put together a delightful rendition of "The Apple Tree," a trio of humorous musicals based on short stories by Mark Twain, Frank Stockton and Jules Feiffer.

Friday's opening was graced with masterful performances by the three major actors — Virginia Duxbury, David Landis and Bob Jones — and backed by a powerful chorus, precise staging and exquisite costuming.

Landis and Mrs. Duxbury started the evening off with an amusing and poignant portrayal of the world's first couple in "The Diary of Adam and Eve," based on a Twain story.

Vigorous Performances

Both brought good voices and vigorous performances to the lead roles, as Adam and Eve discover the world and themselves.

Their strong performances also carried into "The Lady of the Tiger," based on Stockton's story of the king who puts his daughter's suitor to the judgment of the two doors and the question based on the title.

But the most powerful total production came in the third part, "Passionella," the story of a sooty chimney sweep who turns glamorous movie star with the help of the devilish narrator, played by Bob Jones.

As Ella the chimney sweep and Passionella the star, Mrs.

Duxbury registers a charming performance which delighted the Playhouse audience.

She was backed by both Jones and Landis, who played Flip, the Prince Charming with whom Ella falls in love.

Staging, Music

The production was strengthened enormously by excellent staging and by solid musical performances by the leads and the chorus, under the direction of music director Carl Martens.

And the black-white scenic design by Arthur Kuhr, combined with Joe Miller, effectively carried the audience from the dirty chimney world to the glitter of Passionella's Hollywood.

Plaudits should go to the entire cast and especially to Director John R. Wilson for ending the season with a fine show.

Playgoers can see the musical, written by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, on weekends through May 23.

Curtis Suggests Some Freight Trains Carry One Or Two Passenger Cars

Washington (AP)—Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Nebr., proposed Friday that some freight trains be required to carry one or two passenger cars once Amtrak takes over the nation's rail passenger service.

The Nebraska made the proposal in remarks in the Senate on the final day before private railway passenger service was scheduled to give way to the government owned corporation, which has established a limited number of routes.

Curtis said the passenger service corporation could contract with railroads to maintain a few freight trains on fixed schedules and be required to pull a passenger car or two on each of those regularly scheduled freight trains.

"For my own state of Nebraska this would mean retention of passenger service along the Union Pacific line from Omaha west through such communities as Fremont, Columbus, Grand Island, Kearney, Lexington, North Platte, Ogallala, Sidney and Kimball."

He pointed out that both Wyoming and Montana will lose all passenger service.

Curtis said that in this way "the railroads thus would retain a certain responsibility for maintaining passenger service instead of shucking it entirely and making it the responsibility of a government run corporation."

"Some of the mail could continue to move by train to remote areas of the country where airline service is poor or nonexistent," Curtis added.

He said his proposal is "simple; it is reasonable and it will work. It ought to be tried."

Duane Peak Complaint Now In Juvenile Court

By Bill Eutzy Star Staff Writer

Omaha — A complaint was filed in Juvenile Court in Omaha Friday charging 16-year-old Duane C. Peak with delinquency in connection with the Aug. 17, 1970, booby trap bomb slaying of Omaha patrolman Larry Minard.

Peak will appear before Juvenile Court Judge Seward Hart at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

The surprise change from District to Juvenile Court means Peak will serve less than five years for his part in the crime if convicted.

Peak, who had been held in the Fremont jail, was transferred to the Douglas County Youth Center Friday afternoon.

According to Nebraska statutes, juvenile courts have concurrent jurisdiction with other courts, but in a switch from district to juvenile court, "The complaint must be filed by or with the consent of the county attorney."

"In no case," statutes require, "shall a child committed . . . be confined after he or she shall have reached the age of 21 years." Peak will be 21 on August 26, 1975.

Two others, Edward Poindexter, 26, and David Rice, 23, were convicted of first degree murder by a Douglas County District Court jury April 17 and sentenced to life imprisonment. Both have filed appeals.

Peak, originally arraigned in District Court, was the state's chief witness against the pair. Defense counsel at the time charged Peak's attorney, Tom Carey, had made a "deal" with the Douglas County attorney's office to get his client off with a lighter sentence in exchange for Peak's testimony implicating Poindexter and Rice.

The trio, members of the militant National Committee to Combat Fascism, was charged with planting a dynamite-laden suitcase in a vacant house on the predominantly Negro Near North Side, and then luring Omaha policemen there with a telephone message that a woman was screaming for help at that address.

Minard was killed and seven other policemen injured when the suitcase exploded as Minard was examining it. Peak has admitted planting the bomb and then telephoning police.

The last attempt to transfer a first degree murder case to a juvenile court involved Caril Ann Fugate, companion of convicted mass-murderer Charles Starkweather in 1958. Caril's attorney sought unsuccessfully to have her case transferred on the grounds that a juvenile, because of his age, must be tried in juvenile court. The State Supreme Court rejected the argument, and she was ultimately tried and sentenced to life imprisonment in District Court.

Former PCAA Staff Member Barred From Agency Office

Omaha (AP)—In the latest in a series of disputes over the Panhandle Community Action Agency (PCAA) Scotts Bluff County Dist. Judge, Ted. R. Fiedler has granted a temporary injunction barring former PCAA planner-trainer Martin D. Strange from entering the agency office or interfering with the work of the staff.

Fiedler granted a PCAA petition for the injunction, but ordered the agency to post $5,000 bond to cover possible damages awarded to Strange if the court later determines the injunction was wrongfully obtained.

The petition alleged that Strange, after being fired and given severance pay, re-occupied his former office and issued a memorandum to the staff that the new planner trainer, John Wilmerding, had no authority to act in that capacity.

The court later will set a date for a declaratory judgment hearing in the case.

Also involved in the controversy are former PCAA director Ramon Perez, and Sidney Curtright, former PCAA health and nutrition director.

Address, Age Wrong

The age and address of Alvin R. Jensen who was driving a truck involved in a Thursday morning accident in which another Lincoln man died was erroneously reported as Jensen being 52 and living at 1340 J. Apt. 205, Jensen, 42, resides at 7025 Platte.

Big Picture Emphasized By Educator

Dr. Philip Heckman Friday night told members of the Council for Exceptional Children that they should take a look at the big picture — 5 or 10 years from now — when dealing with the problems of teaching exceptional children.

Heckman, president of Doane College, said too often people take a view of education as if they were catching a porcupine. He said a person first sneaks up behind the porcupine with a large metal tub, drops it over the animal and then sits on the tub thinking about his next move.

Approximately 55 people attended the 12th annual state meeting of the organization dedicated to the betterment of education for exceptional children.

The council, organized in 1960 elected federation officers to one-year terms beginning Saturday. Outgoing president Dan Kasparek, of Lincoln, said their new president will be Dale Samuelson, of Omaha.

Samuelson works for the division of special education in the Omaha Public Schools.

Kite Flying Record Set?

Columbus (AP)—Five Platte College students set what they believe to be a world record in flying a kite for distance.

The men put the kite up at 9 a.m. Thursday and at its peak, the length of string out was 5,400 feet — more than one mile.

One of the students, Rod Behlen, took his plane up to check the altitude and found that the kite was flying at between 1,000 and 1,500 feet.

The men staked the kite out on the campus Thursday afternoon and said they planned to keep it in the air as long as possible.

The four other students involved in the project are John Stanley, Ed Walters, Bill Gildea and Bob Treadway, all of Columbus.

Mrs. Kirkman Elected President Nebraska PTA

Omaha (AP)—Mrs. James Kirkman of North Platte was elected to a two-year term as president of the Nebraska Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Mrs. Kirkman succeeds Mrs. Harold H. Thompson of Lincoln.

Delegates to the two-day PTA congress meeting adopted a resolution urging the legislature to provide the financial resources necessary to achieve "quality levels" of education.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Everett Dietz of Omaha, first vice president, and Mrs. Walter C. Phillips of Omaha, secretary.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

When Tuesday's election is all over, the public's business will settle down to one major consideration—money. That's the way you spell the problems of school, county and city government. Forever, it seems, candidates have come along to run on the platform of greater efficiency, of a business-like approach to things.

They have tried to sell the electorate on the idea that we could get more for our money, that public services and programs could be improved while the tax bite remained steady or even declined. The record will show that we have never had one single success in such an effort.

It is popular and sounds good to say that money isn't everything. It has a kind of high moral tone to it, an appeal to the finest of human values. But man, unfortunately, does not live by altruistic values alone.

Despite the lip service to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, people want a lot of other things. They want streets that can handle with dispatch the demands of the automobile. They want recreation centers and swimming pools, parks, summer playground activities, decent law-enforcement, good fire protection, an attractive city and a host of other things.

Of course, they want good schools. They are not by any stretch of the imagination ready and willing to settle for the things that money can't buy. If they were, we would revert to the Stone Age and if they ever had been, we would never have left that age.

If governments at all levels added up the cost of perfection in public service, the total would be a staggering sum. It would make the wealth of the nation look like peanuts. Even local branches of government, if they totaled up their needs, would present a frightening economic picture.

It is obvious that all the needs are not going to be met, any more than an individual meets what he considers to be all his personal needs. For one thing, you ultimately get to the point of inability to distinguish between needs and wants.

The further we go, the more pronounced becomes the disagreement between needs and wants. Finally, we would reach a point where a large majority stood for certain things as needs and a small minority urged anything beyond that point.

Even that point is a long way off but it demonstrates that total satisfaction of society will never be achieved, at least not within the ability of man today to fashion such an end. But how far can we go? That is the question facing public officials.

Every public official today, elected or appointed, legislative or executive, knows that the tax dollar is getting harder and harder to come by. Any really meaningful increase in tax levies is simply out of the question from a practical point of view.

When you consider the situation in generalities, it tends to take on impossible proportions. To the extent that we might some day see all our needs satisfied, the situation is impossible but this is not to say that a lot of progress cannot be made.

Even some savings might be made, through such things as more consolidation of city and county government. This is one thing that, by now, surely deserves far more scrutiny by public officials than it has had in the past. We need an honest and sincere approach to such consolidation, not the petty politics that has been associated with the matter to date.

There may be other areas of inter-governmental cooperation that can be pursued with the hope of some significant gains. This certainly points to good management as one of the essentials of the future if we are to make any progress.

A look at public policies and relations with private industry is another important issue. This is especially true in the area of street improvements, utilities and development of the downtown area.

And finally, growing emphasis will have to be placed on planning, on an orderly determination of needs, the establishment of priorities and a full assessment of financial resources. Thus, the future years will demand of public officials a sophistication and ability of a rather uncommon magnitude.

Nixon To Catch It From Every Angle

NEW YORK — Mr. Nixon might as well get used to the idea right now—for the next 19 months he's not going to be able to do ANYTHING right.

Not for anybody who wants his job, anyway. (And there are times when that seems like half the Senate.)

Or for anybody in that other party who'd like to see someone other than a Republican in the Oval Room. And probably not for any liberal Republicans (there are a few, honest) who are getting restless under Mr. Nixon's brand of conservatism.

All these folks are going to spend the next year and a half sniping at the incumbent every chance they get. No matter how things look.

And at the moment—hold your breath—things are beginning to look a little better.

For one thing, the war in Vietnam is winding down. Slowly but...

And the Chinese communists are making like friends, ping-pong-wise, at least.

Most White House folks seem to think the President could take a few modest bows for this. He is "bringing the boys home"—and he did get in early with his peace feelers to Peking.

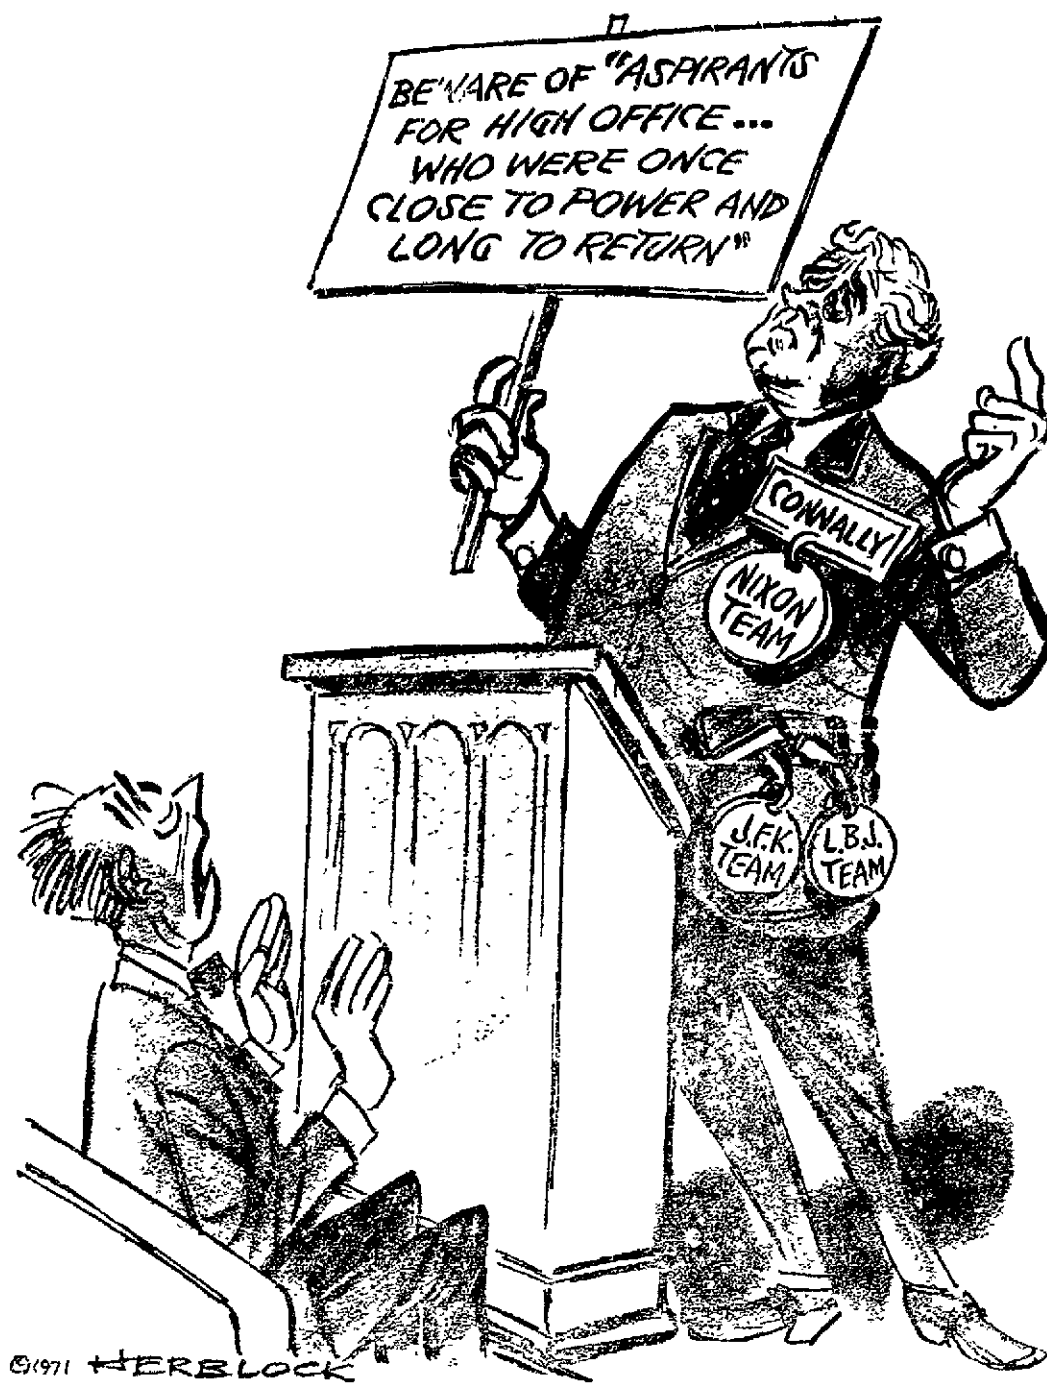

Not so, say the candidates. If they had the job, now, the boys would all be home tomorrow. And anybody knows a couple of ping-pong paddles can't penetrate that old Bamboo Curtain.

In Vienna it looks as if maybe the peace talks will be starting up again in a friendlier atmosphere. It may not mean a thing. But then again...

Here at home the stock market's going slightly crazy in the right direction: up. It's jumped an awesome 300 points in 11 months.

There are faint indications

'Goodness, Could There Be Anyone Like That?'

President Inconsistent

President Nixon made it clear Thursday night that his motives for intervening in the Calley case were based on political rather than judicial considerations. Laws pertaining to the release of convicted persons waiting appeal vary from state to state, the President told a news conference, implying that there is ample precedent for his action of releasing Calley from the stockade.

"I felt Calley should not go to Leavenworth" during the appeal process, he explained, notwithstanding the fact that the lieutenant is a convicted mass murderer.

There seems to be no justification for his action in the President's reasoning that there is a difference between being free on bail and being confined to quarters, as is Calley, but that is a small point compared to the overriding reason given for the presidential decision to intervene and announce that he will make the final determination on Calley's conviction.

"There was great concern expressed throughout the country," Nixon said, so he decided to review the case. And the "country has cooled down" because of his action. So appeasing a thoughtless backlash was reason enough for granting Calley special treatment. Judges don't use such criteria in making decisions, but the President, who is the final judge in the matter, does because political considerations move him to do so.

We find lawyer Nixon in a very different frame of mind when he told the news conference that anti-war demonstrators who attempt or succeed in disrupting governmental operations in Washington next week will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. This is fair and proper warning and should be heeded. What is revealing about the President, however, is that he will live up to his responsibility or be remiss in it depending on his feel of the mood of the country.

A Most Unfortunate Case

You would have to think a long time to come up with a more unfortunate case than the one in which a Lincoln man died of a heart attack while involved in a dispute with a law-enforcement officer.

The report of the officer and the report by witnesses to the incident do not agree. Involved was the issuance of an illegal parking citation on a car parked between the sidewalk and the curb.

This was followed by a confrontation between the officer and the car-owner on private property after the vehicle had been moved. The question is whether the officer was abused by foul language or whether the owner of the car was harassed by the officer.

Admittedly, it will be difficult to come to a firm conclusion on that question. Witnesses to the affair were the daughter of the dead man and an employee of the dead man. Impartial testimony from them may not be the easiest thing to come by.

Still, the matter is one that should be looked into by appropriate officials. No officer of the law should be subject to abuse by people when he is performing his duty. Getting a traffic ticket isn't a pleasant experience but it does not excuse abuse of an officer.

On the other hand, an officer should be more than that—he should be a diplomat. It is not the duty of an officer to pounce upon every human failing and every temporary fit of anger. It is not his duty to pursue the letter of the law to the point of harassment.

Some determination of the officer's conduct is in order through official channels. We need to be constantly alert to the importance of good law-enforcement as opposed to enforcement through police-state tactics. We are not suggesting that this case involves such tactics but only noting that the possibility needs to be examined.

Supreme Court Decisions On Housing, Busing Stir Up Many Questions On Racial Problems

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has left a lot of people puzzled as to the net effect of its two recent major decisions, one on school busing and the other on housing. Taken together, what do they portend for the profound problem of racial division in America?

The busing decision, reached by a unanimous court, held that extensive busing, if necessary, was a proper remedy for formerly dual school systems in the South; but the court specifically held back from applying that remedy to so-called de facto school segregation elsewhere.

The housing decision upheld the constitutionality of state referendum laws that require the majority approval of a community before low-rent housing projects can be constructed in it.

The National Urban Coalition responded to the latter decision by saying that it would have the effect of cancelling out the former. Since referenda on low-income housing frequently prevent its construction, the coalition saw the court's action as speeding the division of the nation into "black and poor central cities and white and affluent suburbs" and thus frustrating such limited remedies as school busing.

In this view, as such racial division is hardened and extended, either there will be no legal basis for cross-busing between suburb and inner city, or the suburban political pressures against such busing will overwhelm the inner-city pressures for it. So even as school segregation is being eliminated in the South, both residential and school segregation would be fostered elsewhere.

On the other hand, it might be argued that the court's busing doctrine, laid down for the South, is ready at hand whenever it might decide to extend it to de facto segregation. Thus, the court might try to move against school segregation without reaching the more difficult question of residential segregation.

Both cases implicitly raised—but gave different answers to—the interesting question at what point there may be a constitutional barrier to a law that cannot be shown to have racial discrimination as its intention, even though its net effect may be racially discriminatory.

Chief Justice Burger, exempting the busing decision from any effect on de facto segregation, wrote that the court did not "reach in this case the question whether a showing that school segregation is a consequence of other types of state action, without any discriminatory action by the school authorities, is a constitutional violation requiring remedial action by a school desegregation decree."

Suppose, for instance, a zoning law that could not be shown to be intended for racially discriminatory purposes, nevertheless resulted in a poor and black neighborhood with an effectively segregated school? The Chief Justice seemed to be saying that the court had not yet decided that, in such a case, it would have to order the school desegregated.

Ironically enough, the court approved the extensive busing program in Charlotte, N.C., on the basis that school officials had not effectively done away with the old dual system; but, in fact, District Judge R. L. McMillan had ruled that virtually all Charlotte's remaining school segregation was the direct result of official actions zoning and the

Steve Cook

Lincoln, Neb.
I think Steve Cook can add a great deal of efficiency to our City Council. Steve has served on both the City-County Planning Commission and the Lincoln Building Code Committee. He understands our complex zoning and building code regulations and the importance of keeping them up to date with the city's growth. Steve also understands the importance of planning—his background as an architect speaks for itself. His experience will make him an effective councilman at a time when nearly half the council will be new.

DONALD EGGERS

Lincoln, Neb.
We have all at one time engaged ourselves in a verbal combat on political or non-political issues. Most often we quickly align ourselves with one side, armed only with those abusive weapons, opinion and self-determination not to lose. Regardless of facts or enlightenment, we often produce a stalemate.

In these critical times, a stalemate in our government could retard vital progress and be detrimental to our city.

Steve Cook has proven, both through his profession and his past civil duties, that he is conscientious and that he does base his decisions on more than just opinion. This is the type of man we need on our City Council.

S. R. FLANDERS

School Board

Lincoln, Neb.
I intend to vote for the incumbents—Ed Copple, Catherine Angle, Marvin Stewart and John Lux—because they have made outstanding contributions to education in Lincoln.

During recent years, the libraries have been completely redone in our elementary schools so that now we have a librarian for almost every school. The foreign language program has been revised so that we now have a strong four-year coordinated program.

We teachers have been given the necessary overhead viewers and other audio visual aids.

The target area schools have been staffed with additional teachers and aides to help the disadvantaged youth in our city. In those schools where the class size is high, additional teachers and aides have been employed.

The current board has an outstanding record of dedication, with almost perfect attendance record. Also, the present incumbents provide the diversity we need on a school board.

A TEACHER

Uninformed Voters

Lincoln, Neb.
I am appalled at this late date in the election campaign to find that many voters are still not aware of some facts about our candidates.

There are those who are not informed that it is Erv Peterson, the builder, and not Pete Peterson, our continuing councilman, who is running for mayor.

Many do not realize that Steve Cook, for instance, has served on the Planning Council and should be of great value on the Council because of his experience.

Those who are concerned about residential zoning changes in their area should know that Mr. Bob Sikyta is owner of Bryant Heating and Air-Conditioning and as such, deals with every contractor in the city.

We should examine the background and present position of each candidate before we cast our ballots next Tuesday.

CONCERNED VOTER

The Businessman

Lincoln, Neb.
Dick Hansen, in his release condemning a business background as a qualification for a seat on the City Council, has epitomized his thinking to be exactly what he set out to discredit.

He submits that a businessman is too narrow in his thinking and would react accordingly in his vote. His thesis, in itself, reflects the narrow thinking he is putting into his campaign.

One need only look to the great numbers of businessmen currently serving in our Congress, the numbers of businessmen serving in cabinet posts and sub-cabinet posts, the numbers of governors, state legislators, assemblymen, councilmen all over our great country who are businessmen and who are serving successfully and effectively.

To say that a businessman looks at his customers with a dollars-and-cents attitude is as narrow an attitude as a narrow attitude as a businessman to have. I suggest that Dick Hansen has done a great disservice in his indictment of the businessman in today's complex world of survival.

A close examination of the facts would tell Mr. Hansen that a businessman today must be: a tax expert, a legislative specialist, a personnel director, a cost control analyst, a raw materials buyer, a time and motion expert, an operating superintendent, an accountant, a mass media expert; he must be versed in national as well as local trade regulations and must stay current in all facets of legislation affecting his business and his customers' welfare.

Let's face it. Running a $50 million business such as the city has requires a business head, too. It cannot be limited to just the legal profession, as Mr. Hansen suggested. It takes all kinds and to think otherwise is exactly what he said: "A narrow way of looking at things."

BUSINESSMAN

Ed Copple

Lincoln, Neb.
In the short-term school board race, we have an interesting choice of candidates.

We can vote for Ed Copple, a native Lincolnite and a successful businessman who already has six years experience on the board and has shown great interest in the entire community. As president of the YMCA board, he has made a real contribution to all the youth of the city along with his dedicated service on the school board.

Or we can vote for Karen Dinsmore, recently moved from Detroit, with no school board or business experience whatsoever. She is apparently concerned primarily with her own elementary school.

Of the six candidates for both the long and short term on the school board, Ed Copple is the only one with extensive business management experience. Since the school board spends over half of our local tax dollars, we need experienced people to look after the taxpayers' interest.

CONCERNED TAXPAYER

Twelve Against

Lincoln, Neb.
Tuesday, we have a chance to vote, and maybe the only time we are heard. This may seem like small issue to the majority of the voters, but it might be an example of how we can be represented.

Last Monday, Erv Peterson and Helen Boosalis voted to approve the vacation of a portion of South 39th Street, which was requested by two families. Over 12 families requested that this street not be vacated. Are Mr. Peterson and Mrs. Boosalis really representing the majority, or are they telling us we don't know what's good for us, and they will tell us they know it all?

ONE OF THE 12

Lincoln, Neb.
We should stop to think if Erv Peterson would really represent the majority.

As chairman of the City Council, he approved the vacation of a portion of South 39th Street, even though over a dozen families petitioned against this and only two families petitioned for it. He decided that two families know more than all the others. Great thinking for a would-be mayor, isn't it?

WANTS REPRESENTATION

Lincoln, Neb.
Erv Peterson, head of the City Council, voted to vacate 39th Street from Sheridan Blvd. south to the alley between Woodbine and 40th Street.

As an abutting property owner, I know of my own knowledge that only three people use the alley east to 40th Street; yet even this causes a traffic jam getting out of the alley on 40th Street. What a traffic jam additional use will cause!

Incidentally, only two people petitioned for the vacation of that part of 39th Street, while 12 families signed a petition against it. The City Council's action is arbitrary, capricious and ridiculous.

Balance Of Interests

Lincoln, Neb.
As the mother of several public school age children, I am concerned about electing teachers and educators to the Lincoln Board of Education. We presently have one professional educator as a board member, and that's fine, since he's had some experience. If, however, we were to add two more in this election, then three to the six members would be from the educational field. Shouldn't the local school board be the parents' and taxpayers' "check-and-balance" between the school administration and the teachers?

And what about conflict of interests? Imagine the public reaction after teachers' salaries have been negotiated and/or the budget apportioned. No matter what the salary increase or to whom or for what the money appropriated, there would be shouts of "dirty pool."

I believe we have good quality and a balance of interests in our present school board, and I am for keeping this team going by supporting Kathy Angle, John Lux, Marvin Stewart for the long term, and Ed Copple for the short term.

Erv Peterson

Lincoln, Neb.
I've never been active in a city election before, but this time I'm asking people to vote for Ervin Peterson.

Some people have tried to use character assassination tactics against Erv Peterson. Erv is our best candidate for mayor. I have known him for over 25 years.

Erv is honest, forthright and fair. He will not stoop to small tactics in his campaign.

Let us do ourselves and Lincoln a favor by electing the big man mayor, Erv Peterson.

He understands our complex zoning and building code regulations and the importance of keeping them up to date with the city's growth. Steve also understands the importance of planning—his background as an architect speaks for itself. His experience will make him an effective councilman at a time when nearly half the council will be new.

DONALD EGGERS

Lincoln, Neb.
We have all at one time engaged ourselves in a verbal combat on political or non-political issues. Most often we quickly align ourselves with one side, armed only with those abusive weapons, opinion and self-determination not to lose. Regardless of facts or enlightenment, we often produce a stalemate.
In these critical times, a stalemate in our government could retard vital progress and be detrimental to our city.
Steve Cook has proven, both through his profession and his past civil duties, that he is conscientious and that he does base his decisions on more than just opinion. This is the type of man we need on our City Council.

S. R. FLANDERS

School Board

Lincoln, Neb.
I intend to vote for the incumbents—Ed Copple, Catherine Angle, Marvin Stewart and John Lux—because they have made outstanding contributions to education in Lincoln.

During recent years, the libraries have been completely redone in our elementary schools so that now we have a librarian for almost every school. The foreign language program has been revised so that we now have a strong four-year coordinated program.

We teachers have been given the necessary overhead viewers and other audio visual aids.

The target area schools have been staffed with additional teachers and aides to help the disadvantaged youth in our city. In those schools where the class size is high, additional teachers and aides have been employed.

The current board has an outstanding record of dedication, with almost perfect attendance record. Also, the present incumbents provide the diversity we need on a school board.

A TEACHER

Uninformed Voters

Lincoln, Neb.
I am appalled at this late date in the election campaign to find that many voters are still not aware of some facts about our candidates.

There are those who are not informed that it is Erv Peterson, the builder, and not Pete Peterson, our continuing councilman, who is running for mayor.

Many do not realize that Steve Cook, for instance, has served on the Planning Council and should be of great value on the Council because of his experience.

Those who are concerned about residential zoning changes in their area should know that Mr. Bob Sikyta is owner of Bryant Heating and Air-Conditioning and as such, deals with every contractor in the city.

We should examine the background and present position of each candidate before we cast our ballots next Tuesday.

CONCERNED VOTER

Lincoln, Neb.
Dick Hansen, in his release concerning a business background as a qualification for a seat on the City Council, has epitomized his thinking to be exactly what he set out to discredit.

He submits that a businessman is too narrow in his thinking and would react accordingly in his vote. His thesis, in itself, reflects the narrow thinking he is putting into his campaign.

One need only look to the great numbers of businessmen currently serving in our Congress, the numbers of businessmen serving in cabinet posts and sub-cabinet posts, the numbers of governors, state legislators, assemblymen, councilmen all over our great country who are businessmen and who are serving successfully and effectively.

To say that a businessman looks at his customers with a dollars-and-cents attitude is as narrow an attitude as he charges the businessman to have. I suggest that Dick Hansen has done a great disservice in his indictment of the businessman in today's complex world of survival.

A close examination of the facts would tell Mr. Hansen that a businessman today must be: a tax expert, a legislative specialist, a personnel director, a cost control analyst, a raw materials buyer, a time and motion expert, an operating superintendent, an accountant, a mass media expert; he must be versed in national as well as local trade regulations and must stay current in all facets of legislation affecting his business and his customers' welfare.

Let's face it. Running a $50 million business such as the city has requires a business head, too. It cannot be limited to just the legal profession, as Mr. Hansen suggested. It takes all kinds and to think otherwise is exactly what he said: "A narrow way of looking at things."

BUSINESSMAN

Ed Copple

Lincoln, Neb.
In the short-term school board race, we have an interesting choice of candidates.

We can vote for Ed Copple, a native Lincolnite and a successful businessman who already has six years experience on the board and has shown great interest in the entire community. As president of the YMCA board, he has made a real contribution to all the youth of the city along with his dedicated service on the school board.

Or we can vote for Karen Dinsmore, recently moved from Detroit, with no school board or business experience whatsoever. She is apparently concerned primarily with her own elementary school.

Of the six candidates for both the long and short term on the school board, Ed Copple is the only one with extensive business management experience. Since the school board spends over half of our local tax dollars, we need experienced people to look after the taxpayers' interest.

CONCERNED TAXPAYER

OFF THE RECORD

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Nixon To Catch It From Every Angle

NEW YORK — Mr. Nixon might as well get used to the idea right now—for the next 19 months he's not going to be able to do ANYTHING right.

Not for anybody who wants his job, anyway. (And there are times when that seems like half the Senate.)

Or for anybody in that other party who'd like to see someone other than a Republican in the Oval Room. And probably not for any liberal Republicans (there are a few, honest) who are getting restless under Mr. Nixon's brand of conservatism.

All these folks are going to spend the next year and a half sniping at the incumbent every chance they get. No matter how things look.

And at the moment—hold your breath—things are beginning to look a little better.

For one thing, the war in Vietnam is winding down. Slowly but...

And the Chinese communists are making like friends, ping-pong-wise, at least.

Most White House folks seem to think the President could take a few modest bows for this. He is "bringing the boys home"—and he did get in early with his peace feelers to Peking.

Not so, say the candidates. If they had the job, now, the boys would all be home tomorrow. And anybody knows a couple of ping-pong paddles can't penetrate that old Bamboo Curtain.

In Vienna it looks as if maybe the peace talks will be starting up again in a friendlier atmosphere. It may not mean a thing. But then again...

Here at home the stock market's going slightly crazy in the right direction: up. It's jumped an awesome 300 points in 11 months.

There are faint indications that maybe the recession is about to gasp its last. Nothing in the whoopee brackets yet, but the gross national product went up six per cent this month and that makes a lot of our economists happy.

Business is even beginning to perk up—at least. Shopping for Easter finery seemed to remind some consumers what retailers were beginning to think they'd forgotten: that spending money can be more fun than tucking it away in a bank. At least, they've been spreading it around a bit more this month.

This is more or less what Mr. Nixon predicted. He said 71 would be a "better year — and 72 will be a great year." Critical reaction to this is: "Oh, yeah? Good for whom? What about all those people out of work?"

The theoretical answer to this is that six per cent used to be the country's normal unemployment rate — except in war years. But that doesn't satisfy anybody who can't find a job.

Then there's the radical element. Guess what they're up to? Working "within the system," no less. And in Berkeley, of all places. And while it may be a mixed blessing to have them winning elections, it beats bombing and such.

Maybe so, says the loyal opposition. But what about the crime rate... and the bankrupt cities... and the drug menace... and the welfare mess... and desegregation... and all the other things voters are unhappy about?

In fact, it looks as if the only happy people around for the next year and a half will be the pollsters — and they'll be too busy to appreciate it.

ABBY More Menus For Tubby Hubby

DEAR ABBY: For five years, Tex (not his real name) accepted expensive gifts, hundreds of meals and a lot of money from me. Also my love and devotion, which he said he wanted for the rest of his life. He said marriage was out because he had been hurt by a former wife. I accepted that.

Suddenly Tex turned out married! He explained that several months prior he had gone to Las Vegas with a woman and he suffered heavy gambling losses, which his female traveling companion made good. Soon she began pressuring him for repayment. Having no funds, he offered her marriage and she jumped at the chance.

Since he was heavily indebted to me, too, I demanded payment, whereupon he went to the county attorney and informed him that since I was a consenting female over 21, that he (Tex) did not "twist my arm," and was not indebted to me for anything. Thus he cleared himself.

For me to have been publicly condemned as an immoral person by one who had taken everything a woman could give was indeed a humiliating experience. I am not asking for advice or consolation, Abby. I have learned my lesson. I just want to pass it on to other women who may find themselves in the same situation. Sign me

Judging by the number of widows around, life seems to think that men are expendable. However, the women who love them do not agree. Actually a wife can play a telling part in prolonging her husband's life and safeguarding him from his number one threat — a heart attack. She can do this in many ways.

She can make home a haven of peace and relaxation. She can avoid meeting him with tensions and problems at the end of a trying day. She can encourage him to take care of his health. Men are apt to overlook small physical problems and to procrastinate about regular periodic physical checkups. She can also encourage him to take a vacation regularly. It helps if she is satisfied with what he can provide. Most men are under terrific pressure to give their family the best of everything they possibly can.

For a few days I am here to help the men who read my column, and the husbands and sweethearts of the women who read it, lose hazardous excess poundage. Those pounds can shorten the life span and make you more susceptible to many of the chronic diseases of middle and later years. Here are the menus for Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Opening lead — ace of hearts.

When you start to play the game, the first thing you learn is how to finesse. But, strangely enough, as you progress you rely less and less on this maneuver; and by the time you've hit your peak you tend to view the finesse largely as an instrument of last resort.

The fact is that, even though the finesse is a marvelous trick-building play, you should generally reserve it until after you've thoroughly considered every other possibility.

Nevertheless, there are times when you simply must finesse. For example, it is sometimes possible to arrange matters so that a finesse will bring home a shaky contract whether it wins or loses, and on such occasions it must be conceded that the finesse is a very fine play indeed.

Take this deal where West leads a heart, which South ruffs. Even at this early stage declarer is sure of the contract no matter how the adverse cards are divided — though on the surface this is not self-evident.

South crosses to dummy with a trump, ruffs the remaining heart, then cashes the K-A of spades. When he leads another spade and West follows low, South finesesses the ten with a 100% guarantee that this play will make the contract.

In the actual case the finesse succeeds, but even if the ten lost to the jack, the contract would still be safe. In such case East would find himself forced to yield a ruff and discard, or return a club.

Furthermore, if East were the one with four spades to the jack, South would still be in fine shape. He would win the third spade with the queen, play the ten, and discard a club on it. East would there-upon find himself in the same unpleasant predicament.

Opening lead — ace of hearts.
When you start to play the game, the first thing you learn is how to finesse. But, strangely enough, as you progress you rely less and less on this maneuver; and by the time you've hit your peak you tend to view the finesse largely as an instrument of last resort.

The fact is that, even though the finesse is a marvelous trick-building play, you should generally reserve it until after you've thoroughly considered every other possibility.

Nevertheless, there are times when you simply must finesse. For example, it is sometimes possible to arrange matters so that a finesse will bring home a shaky contract whether it wins or loses, and on such occasions it must be conceded that the finesse is a very fine play indeed.

Take this deal where West leads a heart, which South ruffs. Even at this early stage declarer is sure of the contract no matter how the adverse cards are divided — though on the surface this is not self-evident.

South crosses to dummy with a trump, ruffs the remaining heart, then cashes the K-A of spades. When he leads another spade and West follows low, South finesesses the ten with a 100% guarantee that this play will make the contract.

In the actual case the finesse succeeds, but even if the ten lost to the jack, the contract would still be safe. In such case East would find himself forced to yield a ruff and discard, or return a club.

Furthermore, if East were the one with four spades to the jack, South would still be in fine shape. He would win the third spade with the queen, play the ten, and discard a club on it. East would thereupon find himself in the same unpleasant predicament.

Bride On Friday

The wedding of Miss Connie Royal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Royal, and David B. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Smith of Omaha, took place on Friday evening, April 30, at Sacred Heart Church. The Rev. Raymond Hain solemnized the service before a background of white gladioli and blue chrysanthemums, and Miss Marie Hassel played the wedding music. The vocal soloist was Stanley Peters.

The attendants, including Miss Cindy Royal, who was her sister's maid of honor; bridesmaids Mrs. Ali Salem of Alexandria, Egypt, and Mrs. Steve Smith of Fort Hood, Tex.; and bridesmaids Miss Donna Weitzel of Shreveport, La., and Miss Joni Bradford, wore alike frocks in the blue shade trimmed with white lace. Each carried a bouquet of blue and white daisies.

Steve Smith of Fort Hood, Tex., served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included John Royal Jr.; Mick Smith, Joe Vlock, and Larry Smith, all of Omaha; Joe Jablonski of Pueblo, Colo.; Brad Schmidt, Dan Smith, and Bob Jarrett.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of Chantilly lace over satin. The lace fashioned the scalloped Victorian collar and the full-length sleeves of the bodice which was smoothly fitted above the A-line silhouette skirt which was accented with a front panel of Peau de soie from Empire height to the hemline. Back interest was given the gown with a train which extended from miniature bows at the shoulders into chapel-length. Petals of the lace and pearls held to the head her train-length lace-bordered veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of two cymbidium orchids in an arrangement of blue and white daisies.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas, Mr. Smith and his bride will reside at 6704 Fairfax Ave., in Lincoln.

The bride was graduated from the Lincoln School of Commerce and is careering in Lincoln as a medical secretary.

Mr. Smith plans to attend the Nebraska Vocational Technical School in Milford.

Betrothal

Of interest to Lincoln this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ebert of the engagement of their daughter, Peggy, to Gene Jeffries, son of Mrs. Clyde Jeffries and the late Mr. Jeffries.

The wedding is planned for August. Mr. Jeffries is a former student at Nebraska Wesleyan University where he is a member of Theta Chi fraternity.

There's News All Around The Town

The days are filled with interesting events these days — So are the evenings, for that matter.

But we have in mind guests — and parties — and brides-elect and parties. Put them altogether and they add up to a very pleasant greeting for May which, as you know, moved in today.

We'll begin with the guest from Whittier, Calif., Mrs. William Long, who will be well remembered in Lincoln as the former Elizabeth Neely.

Mrs. Long, who came from the West Coast in time to attend some of the Centennial activities of Lincoln High School, is dividing her time between her brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Orvis Neely; her sister-in-law, Mrs. Marshall Neely, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schammel.

Complimenting Mrs. Long on Friday was Mrs. George Place (they both are members of Delta Delta Delta on the Nebraska campus) who entertained at luncheon at the Nebraska Club.

The guest list included a group of former high school and college classmates of Mrs. Long.

Before we open the book on numerous courtesies for a popular June bride-elect, we want to mention another guest — Mrs. Raymond C. L. Greer of Portsmouth, N.H., Mrs. Greer left on Friday to return to her home after a visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Taylor Greer.

And now for news of the bride-elect — She is Miss Carolyn Chapin and her marriage

MISS MARSHA HUGHES

Announcement is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Hughes of Clay Center, of the engagement of their daughter, Marsha Ann, to Lyle D. Jacobson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Hughes of Sutton.

The wedding will take place on Sunday, Aug. 22.

Miss Hughes will be a 1971 graduate of Clay Center High School, and also is careering at the Sutton Community Home.

Mr. Jacobson attended Westmar College at LeMars, Iowa, and now is a sophomore in the University of Nebraska College of Business Administration.

to John Hoelscher will be solemnized on Saturday, June 12.

The current series of courtesies for Miss Chapin and Mr. Hoelscher began on Friday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Harry Haynie were a dinner host and hostess at the Lincoln Country Club. Following dinner the two honorees will be presented with a 'round-the-clock' shower.

The soon-to-be bride and Mr. Hoelscher may have time to catch their breath during the weekend, but the social merry-go-round won't pause for long.

On Tuesday evening Miss Chapin and her fiancé again will be in the role of honorees. This time it is a family dinner for which Mr. and Mrs. John Moore will be host and hostess.

There will be no sharing of honors next Saturday, however. Miss Chapin will be the only guest of honor when Mrs. Douglas Dort, Mrs. Paul Hyland, Mrs. Lee Liggett and Mrs. Robert Henderson are hostesses at the home of Mrs. Dort. The guests have been invited for a 10 o'clock brunch after which the bride-elect will be presented with a linen shower.

NU Faculty Newcomers Elect

Until one is named a club officer, the full impact of each official's responsibilities often fails to hit home. Therefore, a special meeting is usually scheduled, with both old and new board members present, during which each officer's duties are explained.

When the present executive board of the Faculty Women's Newcomers Club of the University of Nebraska met at the home of club president, Mrs. John Hess, on Thursday evening, April 29, the new board members for 1971-72 were the special guests.

After responsibilities were explained, the new board members began to make plans for the coming year. The planners and plotters included Mrs. Lowell Moser, the new president; and her cabinet of officials: Mrs. William A. Hlschwede, vice-president; Mrs. Dennis Gutz, secretary; and Mrs. William Sesow, treasurer.

Committee chairmen for next year also were on hand and they are Mrs. Elvis Dickason, special committees; Mrs. Glenn Ford, hospitality; Mrs. Wayne Dobson, hostess; Mrs. Edgar Kelley, yearbook; Mrs. Richard Metcalf, telephone; Mrs. Jerome Sherman, interest groups; Mrs. Robert Piepho, publicity; and Mrs. Joseph Baumgarten, scholarship.

Cookie Money Buys Redbud Tree

The members of Troop 61, applied themselves diligently to the sale of cookies, and realized the vast sum of $16.00. The money would buy something beautiful — for Earth Week. Since the second grade children at the Maudé Rousseau had been presented with trees to plant on Earth Day, the girls in Troop 61 postponed their planting until last Tuesday afternoon.

Their gift to the school yard was a redbud tree.

Troop 61, all students at the Maudé Rousseau, and the tree-planting guests, the second graders, who are standing with their school's principal, Mrs. Frances Enevoldsen, and Girl Scout Troop 61's leader, Mrs. Tom Lawrie.

In the foreground we find

Joyce Olson, a fourth-grader, bending her back and her talents toward the digging of a resting place for the tree while Cary Cathcart (center) also a fourth-grader, takes a breather. Holding the school yard's prized and newest possession is Kit Fogerty.

Bethany Park Heights Hollingsworth Heights Happy Hollow Heights

in suburban areas

Welcome to the month of May. We can't help but let our thoughts wander back to our school days, when May 1 meant that all of the school children would gather 'round the Maypole for the ritual dance. Flowers are in bloom, spring is in the air and a young man's fancy turns to — well, that was when we were school children. It is a nice time of year, and our suburban neighbors have been awaiting the season through what seemed to be the endless months of winter.

Although this may be the merry month of May and the children are collecting May baskets in the suburban neighborhood, we still have the tailend of April birthdays to talk about.

For the candlelighting and extinguishing ceremony we take you to the Bethany Park Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne B. Roelle and their two children, Cynthia and Curtis.

Cynthia, better known as Cindy to the family and East High friends, celebrated her 18th birthday on Thursday, April 29, at a special family dinner in her honor of course.

Her favorite dish is spaghetti — so, you've guessed it — the birthday dinner's main course was spaghetti — completed with birthday cake.

Joining the family for the dinner was Cheryl Johnson, a Northeast student, and Alexander Ciu Kay Ng, a Chinese University of Nebraska student who is spending his second year in the Roelle home with his host family.

We discovered that we have an expert candle snuffer in suburbia — birthday candles, that is. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Klanecky of Hollingsworth Heights are our eye witnesses. It was on Sunday, April 25 just one day before Timothy James Brox' second birthday. Master Brox was at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Brox, who had invited Tim's grandparents, the Klaneckys and Mr. and Mrs. Almond Brox, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McMinds and their children, to help celebrate the special occasion. That was Tim's first contact with birthday candles.

On Wednesday, April 28, Tim had his second exposure to birthday candles. This time the cake and candles were for his grandmother, Mrs. Klanecky, who was celebrating her birthday. Young Tim decided to help his grandmother by blowing out the candles for her as well — after all, he was experienced by this time. He did his job so well the first time, that he insisted on having the candles lit again, and again. A birthday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Brox, son-in-law and daughter of the Klaneckys, preceded the birthday dessert.

The strains of "I'll Be With You In Apple Blossom Time," would have provided suitable music on Sunday afternoon and evening at the Prairie Valley home of Mr. and Mrs. David Meisenholder. Sunday marked the second annual Apple Blossom party. The 17 Apple trees which surround the Meisenholders' home were in full bloom, in spite of the cloudy weather.

The menu for the affair included shishkabob, stuffed potatoes and a special dessert by the host — baked Rhubarb Angel pies. Mr. Meisenholder, who loves to cook, informed us that each guest made his or her own shishkabob on the patio, but because of the weather had to eat indoors.

A bit of sportsmanship was enjoyed by many of the guests who took part in a round or two of volleyball on the backyard courts. Participating in the springtime event as the guests of the Meisenholders were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Eden, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooper of Omaha; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ferguson, Dr. and Mrs. John Thurber, Judge and Mrs. Ralph Slocum, Leta Powell Drake, Dr. Robert Prokop of Papillion, Dr. Maxine Trauernicht and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gaughan.

It has been a busy week in the Happy Hollow Heights' home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred P. Thompson and their four children Lisa, Lauri, Lynda, and Jeffrey.

The whole cycle began when Mr. Thompson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Thompson of Tulsa, Okla., came to Lincoln and the Thompson home for a visit last weekend.

Then, during the past week, Mrs. Thompson's parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Jackson of Beatrice, were in Lincoln for the Nebraska State Dental Society convention.

Tuesday, April 27 was especially a day to remember for Jeffrey, who joined the ranks of the two-year-olds. The traditional family dinner held true in the Thompson family as Jeffrey enjoyed the birthday attention and cake!

Another event worth taking note of is a new niece for Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Thompson. The new little girl, named Sara Katherine, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Thomson — formerly of Lincoln, now of Grand Island, and soon to be residents of Beatrice. Miss Katherine, in addition to her uncle and aunt and her grandparents, has an older brother, Scott.

We have news of another suburban birthday party this morning. The date was Tuesday, April 27, and the place the shelter house at Antelope Park.

Guest of honor was Mrs. H. R. Burns of Kimballcrest, and many members of her family were on hand to bring best wishes to the wife, grandma, mom, and mother-in-law — and to snack on chili, hot dogs, and all the trimmings, plus the traditional birthday cake.

Among the party-goers were H. R. Burns and the couple's daughters, Sonya and Su Lyn — plus Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Burns and their children, Gary Christie and Lorie; Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Thimman and their children, Greg and Vicki Lynn; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Shear and their children, Roseanne, Suzan, and Howard; and Mrs. Edna Thomgan.

The Lincoln Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Covert and their children, Vicki, Chris, and Karl, will be the weekend stop-off point for some special visitors from Mountain Home, Idaho, this weekend.

The guests will be Mr. Covert's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Rhea, and their daughters, April and Allison.

The Rheas are stopping in several states en route to Atlanta, Ga., here they will make their home. After leaving Lincoln and the Covert residence, they will motor to Ohio where they will visit relatives in Columbus and Belpre.

Mr. Rhea recently was discharged from the Air Force. The former lieutenant served at Mountain Home Air Force Base in Idaho.

Auxiliary Officers

New officers of the Women's Auxiliary to the Nebraska State Medical Association were named Wednesday evening, April 28, during the organization's annual convention which was held in Omaha.

Mrs. Leland Olson of Omaha was installed as president, and Mrs. James Carlson of Verdigris was named president-elect.

The other officers include Mrs. Warren Bosley of Grand Island, first vice president; Mrs. Kenneth McGinnis of Lincoln, second vice president; Mrs. Keith McCormick of Omaha, treasurer; Mrs. Stanley Bach of Omaha, recording secretary; and Mrs. Barney Rees of Omaha, corresponding secretary.

Alumnae Officers

When the Sigma Kappa Alumnae gathered at the home of Mrs. Leland M. Towle recently, it was for a very special meeting — the election of officers.

Mrs. Walter Switzer will serve her group as president for the coming year, and the other officers will include Mrs. Bernard W. Nider, vice president; Mrs. Donald D. Dischner, secretary; and Mrs. Janice L. Nickel, treasurer.

Ecology Program

The members of the Soroptimist Club will hear a discussion on "Ecology — The Study of What It Is and What It Is Attempting To Do" at the Wednesday evening, April 28, meeting.

Panel members will include Dr. Patricia J. Rand, assistant professor of teaching and research in the University of Nebraska Department of Botany; and John Harter, Bob Nossaman and Larry Kapustka, university graduate students studying plant ecology.

A 7 o'clock dinner at Hotel Radisson-Cornhusker will precede the program.

Evening Ceremony

Lighted candles in branched candelabra and yellow and white gladioli appointed the chancel of the Grace United Methodist Church in Crete for the wedding of Miss Verdeen Ann Brozovsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Brozovsky of Crete, and Terry L. Stratton of Lincoln, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stratton, Sr., which was an event of Friday evening April 30. The lines of the 7:30 o'clock candlelight ceremony were read by the Rev. Merton D. Wyatt, and the wedding music was played by Miss Rosemary Machacek. Daryl Stehlik was vocal soloist.

A frock of yellow crepe was worn by Miss Denise Brozovsky of Crete, who was her sister's only attendant. The A-line, Empire frock was ornamented with white and yellow ribbons, and she carried a basket arrangement of yellow daisies.

Serving his brother as best man was Charles R. Stratton, Jr., of Otsego, Mich., and seating the guests were Darrell Reed and Gustav Zmiewski.

The bride appeared in a gown of organza fashioned with rose bud appliques of chiffon. The appliques accented the fitted bodice and wide cuffed Bishop sleeves, and beneath the fitted bodice, the gracefully sculptured A-line skirt extended into a train of cotillion length. A bandeau of the rose appliques held to the head her elbow-length veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Following a wedding trip to Michigan, Mr. Stratton and his bride will reside at 1210 F St., Apt. 13, in Lincoln.

Bethany Park Heights Hollingsworth Heights Happy Hollow Heights in suburban areas

Welcome to the month of May. We can't help but let our thoughts wander back to our school days, when May 1 meant that all of the school children would gather 'round the Maypole for the ritual dance. Flowers are in bloom, spring is in the air and a young man's fancy turns to — well, that was when we were school children. It is a nice time of year, and our suburban neighbors have been awaiting the season through what seemed to be the endless months of winter.

Although this may be the merry month of May and the children are collecting May baskets in the suburban neighborhood, we still have the tailend of April birthdays to talk about.

For the candlelighting and extinguishing ceremony we take you to the Bethany Park Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne B. Roelle and their two children, Cynthia and Curtis.

Cynthia, better known as Cindy to the family and East High friends, celebrated her 18th birthday on Thursday, April 29, at a special family dinner in her honor of course.

Her favorite dish is spaghetti — so, you've guessed it — the birthday dinner's main course was spaghetti — completed with birthday cake.

Joining the family for the dinner was Cheryl Johnson, a Northeast student, and Alexander Ciu Kay Ng, a Chinese University of Nebraska student who is spending his second year in the Roelle home with his host family.

We discovered that we have an expert candle snuffer in suburbia — birthday candles, that is. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Klanecky of Hollingsworth Heights are our eye witnesses. It was on Sunday, April 25 just one day before Timothy James Brox' second birthday. Master Brox was at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Brox, who had invited Tim's grandparents, the Klaneckys and Mr. and Mrs. Almond Brox, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McMindes and their children, to help celebrate the special occasion. That was Tim's first contact with birthday candles.

On Wednesday, April 28, Tim had his second exposure to birthday candles. This time the cake and candles were for his grandmother, Mrs. Klanecky, who was celebrating her birthday. Young Tim decided to help his grandmother by blowing out the candles for her as well — after all, he was experienced by this time. He did his job so well the first time, that he insisted on having the candles lighted again, and again. A birthday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Brox, son-in-law and daughter of the Klaneckys, preceded the birthday dessert.

The strains of "I'll Be With You In Apple Blossom Time," would have provided suitable music on Sunday afternoon and evening at the Prairie Valley home of Mr. and Mrs. David Meisenholder. Sunday marked the second annual Apple Blossom party. The 17 Apple trees which surround the Meisenholders' home were in full bloom, in spite of the cloudy weather.

The menu for the affair included shiskabob, stuffed potatoes and a special dessert by the host—baked Rhubarb Angel pies. Mr. Meisenholder, who loves to cook, informed us that each guest made his or her own shiskabob on the patio, but because of the weather had to eat indoors.

A bit of sportsmanship was enjoyed by many of the guests who took part in a round or two of volleyball on the backyard courts. Participating in the springtime event as the guests of the Meisenholders were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Eden, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooper of Omaha; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ferguson, Dr. and Mrs. John Thurber, Judge and Mrs. Ralph Slocum, Leta Powell Drake, Dr. Robert Prokop of Papillion, Dr. Maxine Trauernicht and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gaughan.

It has been a busy week in the Happy Hollow Heights' home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred P. Thompson and their four children Lisa, Lauri, Lynda, and Jeffrey.

The whole cycle began when Mr. Thompson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Thompson of Tulsa, Okla., came to Lincoln and the Thompson home for a visit last weekend.

Then, during the past week, Mrs. Thompson's parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Jackson of Beatrice, were in Lincoln for the Nebraska State Dental Society convention.

Tuesday, April 27 was especially a day to remember for Jeffrey, who joined the ranks of the two-year-olds. The traditional family dinner held true in the Thompson family as Jeffrey enjoyed the birthday attention and cake!

Another event worth taking note of is a new niece for Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Thompson. The new little girl, named Sara Katherine, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Thomson — formerly of Lincoln, now of Grand Island, and soon to be residents of Beatrice. Miss Katherine, in addition to her uncle and aunt and her grandparents, has an older brother, Scott.

We have news of another suburban birthday party this morning. The date was Tuesday, April 27, and the place the shelter house at Antelope Park.

Guest of honor was Mrs. H. R. Burns of Kimballcrest, and many members of her family were on hand to bring best wishes to the wife, grandma, mom, and mother-in-law—and to snack on chili, hot dogs, and all the trimmings, plus the traditional birthday cake.

Among the party-goers were H. R. Burns and the couple's daughters, Sonya and Su Lyn—plus Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Burns and their children, Gary Christie and Lorie; Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Thimigan and their children, Greg and Vicki Lynn; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Shear and their children, Roseanne, Suzan, and Howard; and Mrs. Edna Thomgan.

The Lincoln Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Covert and their children, Vicki, Chris, and Karl, will be the weekend stop-off point for some special visitors from Mountain Home, Idaho, this weekend.

The guests will be Mr. Covert's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Rhea, and their daughters, April and Allison.

The Rheas are stopping in several states en route to Atlanta, Ga., here they will make their home. After leaving Lincoln and the Covert residence, they will motor to Ohio where they will visit relatives in Columbus and Belpre.

Mr. Rhea recently was discharged from the Air Force. The former lieutenant served at Mountain Home Air Force Base in Idaho.

Auxiliary Officers

New officers of the Women's Auxiliary to the Nebraska State Medical Association were named Wednesday evening, April 28, during the organization's annual convention which was held in Omaha.

Mrs. Leland Olson of Omaha was installed as president, and Mrs. James Carlson of Verdigris was named president-elect.

The other officers include Mrs. Warren Bosley of Grand Island, first vice president; Mrs. Kenneth McGinnis of Lincoln, second vice president; Mrs. Keith McCormick of Omaha, treasurer; Mrs. Stanley Bach of Omaha, recording secretary; and Mrs. Barney Rees of Omaha, corresponding secretary.

Alumnae Officers

When the Sigma Kappa Alumnae gathered at the home of Mrs. Leland M. Towle recently, it was for a very special meeting—the election of officers.

Mrs. Walter Switzer will serve her group as president for the coming year, and the other officers will include Mrs. Bernard W. Nider, vice president; Mrs. Donald D. Dischner, secretary; and Mrs. Janice L. Nickel, treasurer.

Ecology Program

The members of the Soroptimist Club will hear a discussion on "Ecology — The Study of What It Is and What It Is Attempting To Do" at the Wednesday evening, April 28, meeting.

Panel members will include Dr. Patricia J. Rand, assistant professor of teaching and research in the University of Nebraska Department of Botany; and John Harter, Bob Nossaman and Larry Kapustka, university graduate students studying plant ecology.

A 7 o'clock dinner at Hotel Radisson-Cornhusker will precede the program.

Evening Ceremony

Lighted candles in branched candelabra and yellow and white gladioli appointed the chancel of the Grace United Methodist Church in Crete for the wedding of Miss Verdeen Ann Brozovsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Brozovsky of Crete, and Terry L. Stratton of Lincoln, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stratton, Sr., which was an event of Friday evening April 30. The lines of the 7:30 o'clock candlelight ceremony were read by the Rev. Merton D. Wyatt, and the wedding music was played by Miss Rosemary Machacek. Daryl Stehlik was vocal soloist.

A frock of yellow crepe was worn by Miss Denise Brozovsky of Crete, who was her sister's only attendant. The A-line, Empire frock was ornamented with white and yellow ribbons, and she carried a basket arrangement of yellow daisies.

Serving his brother as best man was Charles R. Stratton, Jr., of Otesgo, Mich., and seating the guests were Darrell Reed and Gustav Zmieweki.

The bride appeared in a gown of organza fashioned with rose bud appliques of chiffon. The appliques accented the fitted bodice and wide cuffed Bishop sleeves, and beneath the fitted bodice, the gracefully sculptured A-line skirt extended into a train of cotton length. A bandeau of the rose appliques held to the head her elbow-length veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Following a wedding trip to Michigan, Mr. Stratton and his bride will reside at 1210 F St., Apt. 13, in Lincoln.

Queen, Student Prince Named

Paula Buckley, Hastings senior, reigned as queen of Spring Fete activities Friday at Nebraska Wesleyan University and James Christensen, Minden junior, was selected as Student Prince.

The traditional Spring Fete program, sponsored by Cardinal Key, women's national service organization, and Blue Key, the men's counterpart, included a sing fest, tapping of new members for the sponsoring groups, and naming of a poetry contest winner.

Miss Buckley, daughter of Mrs. Lydia Buckley of Hastings, is a member of Phi Mu sorority. She was a W-Club Sweetheart candidate last fall, a letter girl with the Pride-of-the Plainsman marching band, treasurer of Panhellenic Council and secretary of the Student Education Association.

Christensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney V. Christensen of Minden, is a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity and Blue Key. He was active in Student Senate, Student Court, Beta Beta Beta biology honorary, and Beta Beta, a Greek service organization.

Other members of the Spring Fete court are:

Seniors: Millie Porter, Lamoni, Iowa; Denise Neudeck, Omaha; Vicki Guida, Independence, Kan.; David Ott, Hastings; Craig Einsel, Hastings; and Harry Adams, Bensenville, Ill.

Juniors: Cindy Wilson,

Hastings; Donna Elser, Crete; Dave Royer, Grand Island; Robert Shires, 500 Wedgewood, Omaha; Mary Gardner, Superior; Debra Brenner, Kearney; Richard French, Fairbairn; Brad Purrell, Craig; Freemen: Julie Nisley, Papillion; Amy Bertelson, Missouri Valley, Iowa; Galen Ewer, Elwood; and Lee Newcomer, York.

Members of the Daisy and Ivy Chains are NWU coeds selected for their scholarship. The Ivy Chain sophomores were: Sally Abelbeck, Deshler; Phyllis Beck, 3444 Walker Dr.; Kathleen Chaffee, 1614 No. 59th; Sharon DeKarske, Norfolk; Jan Dutton, 2143 Hildwood; Victoria Frisbie, Omaha; Jane Holloway, Fairbury; Virginia Jones, 940 East 40th Lane; Nancy Keller, Seward; Christine Kellogg, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Linda Krager, Omaha; Joyce Kruse, Denver; June McCaslin, Casper; Deborah Munson, Council Bluffs, Iowa; Bette Olson, Hastings; Nancy Scherer, Clarkson; and Teresa Yost, Kearney.

Daisy Chain freshmen: Christine Arnison, Imperial; Cynthia Ball, 2321 So. 13th; Teresa Beck, Omaha; Sharon Buel, North Platte; Jeannette Cook, Ogallala; Patricia Hedrick, Norfolk; Louise Johnson, Bertrand; Diane Krausert, Omaha; Kristine Lewis, St. Paul; Cheryl McChesney, Gladstone; Kathleen McClelland, Des Moines; Janet Miller, East Aurora, N.Y.; Judith Miller, Kinross, Iowa; Dianna Newman, Stuart; Charlene Oelkers, Elwood; Joyce Rudell, 7620 Colby; Margaret Rutledge, 2941 So. 40th; Mary Shoemaker, Des Moines; Diane Volken, Carson, Iowa; Peggy Vosta, Milford.

Winner Told Of Poetry Competition

KENTON MOORE

NWU Poet

Moore is the son of Mrs. Irene Clay.

His poem:

The Sculptor and the black statue stands motionless sullen, dark, and yielding to the sculptor's pushing, molding, scraping and pressing white thumb shaping the black stone, chipping away the crust of time, chiseling off the edges revealing a figure of pure black stone smooth and cold, gleaming eyes from under ebony pits with hunger shaped into a face
knowingly as the sculptor whittles away shaping with his white thumb the black revolutionary

Kreikemeier Wins Science Award

A West Point youth, Michael L. Kreikemeier, Friday was named winner of the Nebraska Science Talent Search.

He and five other students were given special recognition tonight at the 81st annual banquet of the Nebraska Academy of Sciences and Affiliated Societies at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Kreikemeier, a student at Central Catholic High School in West Point, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton J. Kreikemeier. He was an honorable mention recipient in the national science talent search conducted by various state groups for the Westinghouse Science Scholarships.

Kreikemeier's science project was titled "The Effects on Lifespan and Characteristics of Mobility of Daphnia Pulex When Exposed to a System of Artificial Gravity." Her teacher-sponsor was LeRoy W. Kalleymeyn.

Three students were recognized for being named to the Honor Roll of the Mathematical Association of America. They were Howard Z. Marshall, a senior, and Lawrence A. Denenberg, a junior, both of Omaha Central, and David W. Leavitt, Lincoln Northeast High School senior.

Their teachers, Miss Pratt, Lois McKean of Omaha Central and Buren Thomas, Lincoln Northeast, were also recognized.

This is the second consecutive year that Marshall has scored the highest mark in the mathematics exam. It was given this year to some 6300 students in Nebraska and South Dakota schools.

The banquet was followed by the annual Maiben Memorial Lecture, delivered by Dr. J. L. McHugh, professor of marine Sciences Research Center at the State University of New York in Stony Brook.

Fund-Raising Ends
Cambridge, Mass. (UPI) — Fund-raising for the Kennedy Library complex has ended with about $9 million set aside for the project.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Saturday
The late, great magician, Harry Houdini, investigated astrology with the intent of exposing it. But a findings compiled him, to state that the subject represented a worthy study—and he forgot all notions of going against astrologers. Houdini was notorious for attempting to humiliate mediums and perhaps, he thought astrology would be his last. He found out differently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle high; where you were depressed, you now shine. Personality is spotlighted. You meet individual who sparks your faith, hope. You are given solid vote of confidence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Some who talk with confidence may lack real knowledge. Ask others; check out their figures. Refuse to take persons, situations for granted. Cooperate in special charity project.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spotlight on fulfillment of major wishes. You have some details to iron out—but basic success is assured. Perseverance increases. Social life will accelerate. Have fun, but take care.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Advancement indicated if you are willing to accept change of routine. Special honor could come your way. Gemini individual aids in achieving goal. Stick to principles. Invest in talents.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Favorable lunar aspect now is indicative of unique insight. You gain knowledge in unusual manner. One who confides in you will actually prove a valuable ally. Be receptive, enthusiastic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What appeared to be a dead issue could be revived. Protect your interests. Don't be deceived by one who talks but doesn't back it up with facts. Get what's coming to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Exchange information. Negotiate difference. Realize those in authority will back your position. Don't force issues. But do stand pat on basic principles. Legal maneuver, if cause.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Health matters require attention. Avoid excess, strain. Neighbor in transit could make special request. Do what you can—within reason. Don't stick out your neck for nothing.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are due for domestic adjustment, possible change of residence. Be diplomatic in dealing with family member. You are charming, but stubborn. You have original ideas, but must test them.

Queen, Student Prince Named

Paula Buckley, Hastings senior, reigned as queen of Spring Fete activities Friday at Nebraska Wesleyan University and James Christensen, Minden junior, was selected as Student Prince.

The traditional Spring Fete program, sponsored by Cardinal Key, women's national service organization, and Blue Key, the men's counterpart, included a sing fest, tapping of new members for the sponsoring groups, and naming of a poetry contest winner.

Miss Buckley, daughter of Mrs. Lydia Buckley of Hastings, is a member of Phi Mu sorority. She was a W-Club Sweetheart candidate last fall, a letter girl with the Pride-of-the Plainsman marching band, treasurer of Panhellenic Council and secretary of the Student Education Association.

Christensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney V. Christensen of Minden, is a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity and Blue Key. He was active in Student Senate, Student Court, Beta Beta Beta biology honorary, and Ioniais, a Greek service organization.

Other members of the Spring Fete court are:

Seniors: Millie Porter, Lamoni, Iowa; Denise Neudeck, Omaha; Vicki Guida, Neenah, Kan.; David Ott, Hastings; Craig Eisel, Hastings, and Harry Adams, Bensenville, Ill.

Juniors: Cindy Wilson,

Hastings; Donna Elsner, Crete; Dave Royer, Grand Island; Robert Shires, 500 Wedgewood.

Sophomores: Mary Gardner, Beatrice; Debra Brennoer, Fairfield; Richard French, Wahoo; Brad Hurrell, Craig.

Freshmen: Julie Nisley, Papillion; Amy Bertelson, Missouri Valley, Iowa; Galen Ewer, Elwood; and Lee Newcomer, York.

Krager, Omaha; Joyce Kruse, Denver; June McCaslin, Casper; Deborah Munson, Council Bluffs; Bette Olson, Hastings; Nancy Scherer, Clarkson; and Teresa Yost, Kearney.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Saturday

The late, great magician, Harry Houdini, investigated astrology with the intent of "exposing" it. But his findings compelled him to state that the subject represented a worthy study — and he forgot all notions of "going after" astrologers. Houdini was notorious for attempting to humiliate mediums and, perhaps, he thought astrology would be grist for his mill. He found out differently.

Kreikemeier Wins Science Award

A West Point youth, Michael L. Kreikemeier, Friday was named winner of the Nebraska Science Talent Search.

He and five other students were given special recognition tonight at the 81st annual banquet of the Nebraska Academy of Sciences and Affiliated Societies at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Kreikemeier, a student at Central Catholic High School in West Point, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton J. Kreikemeier. He was an honorable mention recipient in the national science talent search conducted by various state groups for the Westinghouse Science Scholarships.

Kreike Meier's science project was titled "The Equilibrium Constant" and his teacher-sponsor was Sister Antonita Diederich.

Receiving honorable mention recognition in the Nebraska Science Talent Search were Frank D. Brodkey, Omaha, and Kimberly S. Straub, Omaha.

Brodkey, a student at Central High School, conducted a project on "The Paradox of Brodkey's Polygon." His teacher-sponsor was Virginia Pratt. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brodkey.

Miss Straub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Straub, is a student at Omaha Benson. Her project was on "The Effects on Lifespan and Characteristics of Mobility of Daphnia Pulex When Exposed to a System of Artificial Gravity." Her teacher-sponsor was LeRoy W. Kalle-meyn.

This is the second consecutive year that Marshall has scored the highest mark in the mathematics exam. It was given this year to some 6300 students in Nebraska and South Dakota schools.

The banquet was followed by the annual Maiben Memorial Lecture, delivered by Dr. J. L. McHugh, professor of marine Sciences Research Center at the State University of New York in Stony Brook.

Youth Confab Course Changed

By STEVEN LEVINE

Estes Park 24 hours ago looked as if the feature writers would carry the day. The emergent character of the 1971 White House Conference on Youth was so contradictory and so abstract, it completely frustrated efforts at hard news reporting. Nothing conclusive, nothing that could comfortably top out an inverted pyramid, was emerging from three days of workshops covering the task force areas under consideration by the 1,420 youth and adult delegates to the conference.

But by early evening of Wednesday, April 21, every one of the 23 phone lines from the YMCA camp at which the gathering was taking place, had three reporters waiting to call in priority copy.

The conference, much vaunted as an exhaustively comprehensive cross section of young American opinion, had given the press its story. It approved a radical slate of tough resolutions to send back to the President's desk 450 to 155 (even with adult delegates voting). It ratified an immediate unilateral Indochina withdrawal proposal and by similar margins adopted recommendations for lowering the age of majority to 18, setting a guaranteed minimum income with none of the Nixon F.A.P. qualifications, legalizing currently illicit sexual behavior, repealing the Internal Security Act, legalizing marijuana and firing J. Edgar Hoover.

Atop these recommendations was placed a fiery preamble, asserting the right of revolution in the face of unresponsive governance.

Political Weight

With the early analyses and

STEVEN LEVINE

Radical Resolutions

The initial denunciations already underway, a considerable political weight appears to accrue to the conference's outcome. Some explanations appear clearly behind all these surprises in the attitudes of American people between the ages of 14 and 24.

The conference composition seems to have been broadly assembled. Delegates were elected to the task forces by state committees' selection, organizational nomination, volunteerism, and, in at least three cases, political connections. There was never any question of a left wing preponderance.

The delegates brought to Estes every kind of opinion. They looked every kind of way, and spoke with every kind of accent. If there was any commonality of opinion, it might safely have been termed "liberal concern."

Indeed, a radical microphone coup attempt at the opening session was aborted largely by hooting from the audience.

Between Sunday and Wednesday, however, the conference somehow radicalized itself. It may have done so through inevitable concomitants to its own political process.

External Implication

Clear from the outset was the conference's external implication. The whole show was to be played to an audience far greater than the administration.

On the first night, Conference Director Steve Hess admonished attending journalists to "not confuse controversy with divisiveness."

The conference was to be a barometer of President Nixon's standing with the young. With all the prior publicity surrounding the meeting, the delegates, at least to me, seemed to bear heavy burdens of political responsibility. As events transpired, I heard many mentions of the final report's impact on national politics.

In some groups, Poverty and Race Relations in particular, with a sizable body of organizationally-minded, self-directed politicians possessing a shrewd eye for potential federal funding, consensus was reached early. But the drug task force was still chaotic at 3 a.m. Wednesday. There, with delegate majorities still in doubt, an overall dissatisfaction gradually gave shape to the high energy level of the conference politics.

The attempted manipulation of the task force proceedings was bald and bold. No open plenaries were scheduled for the consideration of systemic issues. Task force discussions were, at first, dominated by the minority of adult delegates. These experts, knowing the cabalistic secrets and pet jargon and possessing thick paperbound government printing office paperbacks, often debated pedantically among themselves, excluding the youth delegates who sat in frustrated silence.

Procedural matters were settled by an advisory commission that, while it had youth representation, was not answerable to youth delegates at open meetings.

The young people were treated shabbily, staying six to an unheated room, eating appalling slop, often having only limited access to operative plumbing. Under these conditions, they experienced a certain isolation from the adults and the staff. They pulled each other from the snowdrifts, cheered each other away from home and school, and in an intensely difficult environment, moved toward a sort of underground consensus.

When the task force reports were finally drafted, the experts were silent and the young people themselves did the writing.

The delegate majority clearly rejected predetermined strategies and took issue positions. Arguments were evaluated on their merits (acknowledging a liberal bias) and radical conclusions were reached. The results were heady for the newly radicalized, and they reacted to their own ultimate defiance with a kind of angry, abandoned enthusiasm.

What all this portends still is not certain. I saw no real evidence of a youth community of interest. The diversity of the individuals involved was stubbornly obvious. What I did witness was a certain generalized skepticism. The directors who thought that kids still dig living six to a room, overlooked a growing sophistication, perhaps a growing suspicion in young perceptions.

Finally, what I think I witnessed, was a loud, angry rejection of a flat-footed, up-front shuck; and whenever that happens anywhere in this country, it's news.

Damage Suit Verdict Upheld

By The Associated Press
A hospital patient who fell and was injured while climbing out of bed was properly denied monetary damages for personal injuries sustained, the State Supreme Court held Friday.

The finding withheld the Douglas County District Court jury verdict in favor of Bishop Clarkson Memorial Hospital in a suit brought by Margaret Munson.

9 NWU Students To Go To Austria

Nine Nebraska Wesleyan University students will participate in a summer of study at Graz University in Austria, according to Dr. Milton Evans, dean of students.

The program is sponsored by the American Colleges and Universities for International-Cultural Study to which Nebraska Wesleyan belongs.

Participating in the program are Kathy Miller, Omaha; Colleen Nelson, St. Edward; Steve Hippie, Lincoln; Bob Glen, Morrill; Woody Weilage, Lincoln; Henry Furst, Lincoln; Donna Winters, Elburn, Ill.; and Julianne Larsen, Minden.

The patient contended hospital personnel failed to respond to her signal for assistance, which led her to attempt to leave the bed unassisted. She said she fell and injured her hip.

The Supreme Court said the evidence would support a finding contrary to her assertion that her call was ignored, and a finding that she deliberately and unnecessarily assumed the risk. The Supreme Court rejected a contention that the jury had been improperly instructed.

Altogether, the Supreme Court ruled on 10 appeals Friday, seven of them originating in Douglas County.

In other cases, the court: Generally upheld the Buffalo County District Court in granting a divorce to Ida M. Sims from Irwin Sims, but modified the judgment by deleting a $4,444 award to Mr. Sims under terms of an antenuptial agreement between the two.

Affirmed the Otoe County District Court in dismissing an appeal by Edward Prigge after Prigge's driver's license had been revoked by the director of motor vehicles under the implied consent law.

Upheld the Buffalo County District Court in denying post conviction relief to William McMillan and Benjamin Brock, each sentenced to five years in prison on pleas of guilty to burglary.

Affirmed the Douglas County District Court jury finding for the defendant Anderson Concrete Co. in a personal injury suit brought by Warren E. Hayes, driver of a Ready Mixed Concrete Co. truck, as the result of a 1967 truck collision at 132nd and L Sts. at Omaha's outskirts.

Reversed the Douglas County District Court in denying post conviction relief to William Maurice Anderson, convicted of robbery.

Upheld the Douglas County District Court in finding in favor of Cecil L. Hartman, doing business as Hartman Construction, in a personal injury suit brought by Vernon Lasker as the result of a fall from a ladder in a house under construction.

Reversed the Douglas County District Court in denying post conviction relief to Edward L. Lincoln, an evidentiary hearing on his motion for post conviction relief.

Affirmed the Douglas County District Court in dismissing a post conviction proceeding brought by Harold Wellington Rapp, convicted of burglary.

Retirees Find Success In New Careers

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Robert Peterson is on vacation. During his absence his column will be written by author and publisher Henry Schmidt.)

By HENRY SCHMIDT

Retired readers write: — Al Barton is serving his fourth term as mayor of his home town in New York state. When Al retired six years ago at the age of 68, he immediately began giving more time to his community. "While I was working," Al wrote, "at various times, I was on the fire department, the school board and acted as village trustee. After retiring, of course, I've been able to concentrate much more on town affairs." He and Mrs. Barton having already toured the U.S.

by car and plane, still like to travel whenever the mayor's job is not too demanding.

John Portland has been an avid gardener nearly all his life. At age 73 he has some 50 customers for his landscaping work. He acts as consultant and sells nursery stock for local and national garden centers. He and his wife are well into the grandparent category. They have three grandchildren, with one grandchild now in college. Fourteen years ago, however, they became guardians of a youngster, now in high school.

The Hammonds, Harold and Helen, have made a conspicuous success of their restaurant and food enterprise. Harold had worked as a storekeeper in the plant of a large food manufacturing company, and had a good background for his retirement business.

At age 72, with his new enterprise successfully launched, he met his severest challenge. Their restaurant burned to the ground. But Harold and Helen rebuilt it immediately and were back in business less than a year later. Explaining his resolution to get going again, Harold may have summed up the philosophy of a successful retirement, one that applies to all.

"Always keep a goal, and live for what you can do tomorrow."

Tom Buckman always had an interest in upholstery fabrics, had taken a course in weaving, and had done needlepoint in his spare time. When his wife asked him to upholster a wing chair for her mother some years ago, he began to think seriously about turning his hobby into a small retirement business.

He enrolled in a school of upholstery and studied five hours a night, three nights a week until he had mastered all the school could teach. He refused to take shortcuts, because he was living in an area abounding in antique furniture and he wanted to do quality work.

Today, Tom Buckman has a workshop on the ground floor of his home and has plenty of orders for the specialized work he does. For those who contemplate a skilled business of this sort, Buckman has these words of advice: "Give the public a square deal and the public will treat you well."

Witnesses Against Bus Discontinuance

By TOM EKVAL
Star Staff Writer

The immediate discontinuance of a bus system in Lincoln would create a hardship for many a family and put the city into "an emergency situation," Mrs. Jeanne Agee, president at the Lincoln League of Women Voters, testified Friday before the State Railway Commission.

Mrs. Agee was one of several city witnesses to appear before Railway Commissioner Robert Marland, urging that bus service be continued by Lincoln City Lines for "a reasonable period of time" — that being until the city could take over the operation.

Marland continued the hearing on the matter until National City Lines files a late exhibit detailing the sharp reduction in its paid in, or capital, surplus account and briefs filed opposing parties on the legal rights of National City Lines to discontinue service.

May 14 Cutoff

He set May 14 as the date for filing briefs.

Earlier, in summation, City Atty. Dick Wood requested the commission to continue the hearing until after May 4, the date voters decide on a bond issue for the city to purchase and operate the bus system, when more definite information could be furnished as to what would constitute a reasonable period of time to keep the buses in operation.

Attorney John Doyle, representing the bus company, objected, saying that he would be before the Railway Commission May 5, requesting the commission to use its emergency powers to allow Lincoln City Lines to stop service immediately should the bus issue fall.

Marland then put aside the objection saying no action would be taken until after the late exhibit is filed and that the record would remain open until such time.

"Catastrophic Losses"

Doyle contended again that the "catastrophic losses" of Lincoln City Lines makes it necessary to stop service immediately.

Doyle asked Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf when he was on the witness stand how long a company should continue to operate if losing money.

Schwartzkopf countered that the losses of Lincoln City Lines did not come about until after the city agreed to subsidize the losses up to a maximum of $25,000.

When asked by the attorney for Lincoln City Lines what the city would do should the bond issue fail, the mayor responded: "We will cross that bridge when it comes."

Schwartzkopf also said his office has fielded complaints from passengers complaining about buses not being on time and bus drivers getting out of their buses while on their routes to get a hamburger and soft drink.

Slop Using Buses

Bob Campbell, a member of the Better Bus Committee said some employees at Miller & Paine have stopped using buses to get to work because of the unavailability of the buses to get them to work on time.

City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger also testified at the hearing that checks were made by his office and by the police department on the dependability of the buses making their routes on schedule.

Holsinger said his office, during a week in March, observed 30 irregularities out of 178 checks, mostly late departures, some as long as 20 minutes late, at the terminal points at a route.

He said the police check in the downtown area during the period of observation produced a 29% irregularity rate, including 34 instances when no bus showed up out of 532 checks and 104 when more than five minutes late.

Automation Inc. May Sell 'Pig' For Pipe Tests

Beverly Hills, Calif. (AP) — Automation Industries Inc. is testing a device it calls "pig" for use in testing oil pipelines, says John J. Burke, the firm's new president.

Burke told 250 shareholders at the annual meeting Thursday that the "pig" travels through pipelines to provide readings on soundness. Market potential for such a device is good, he said, including possible use in the proposed Alaska oil pipelines.

Burke, former president of Howmet Corp., said the company had a net income of $403,000 or 5 cents a share, for the quarter ended March 31. The company lost $1.8 million, 22 cents a share, for the same 1970 period.

Policemen, Fraternity Brothers Enjoy 'Feed The Fuzz' Dinners

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

Several Lincoln police officers didn't show up at home for dinner during the past few days but instead attended "Fred the Fuzz" dinners at the Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity house at the University of Nebraska.

Rich Sphir, president of the fraternity, said that the purpose of the dinners was to "try to disestablish the common concept students have of police as a d-beating, club-swinging ogres."

The project is also designed to "help give the police a better foundation for their concepts of students by meaningful and honest communication."

In the program up to five officers are able to go to the house for lunch or supper.

Response Said Good

Sophir said there has been a good response to the project. He said there are plans for holding the dinners again in the fall and possibly expanding them to include the fire department and other service-oriented organizations.

During the meetings, the roles of the police officers are discussed as well as the relationship with students. All of the discussions are informal and nearly every aspect of police work is covered.

The proposal for the "Feed the Fuzz" program was brought to Sophir by Keith Cohen, a sophomore from Shawnee, Kan., who had heard of a similar program at the University of Missouri.

Program 'Different'

Cohen said, "A program was needed that was different from those which had been held in the past."

And he felt there was a need for a "change in the fraternity and the fraternity system to a more socially oriented group. We need to move the fraternity away from its isolated campus activities and out into the community."

One member of the fraternity, Terry Wiseman of Omaha, said that it was "a real experience" and that he had obtained a "knowledge of the responsibilities and duties of the cop on the beat."

Sgt. Leland Frakes, one of the officers who attended the Thursday night supper, said that he appreciated having a chance to meet the students and termed the entire affair as "very enjoyable."

'Very Interesting'

"It was very interesting to be able to sit and talk with them and exchange ideas about the various aspects of police work."

Frakes said the meeting enabled him to better see the students' point of view and felt that it was beneficial for both groups.

According to Sophir the National Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity has been considering a similar program to be instituted across the country.

Dentist Found Innocent In Plot To Receive Teeth

Portland, Ore. (UPI) — Dr. Lawrence Bernard, a dentist, was found innocent Friday of charges he conspired to receive and conceal 17,850 stolen false teeth.

Bernard was found innocent by U.S. District Judge Robert C. Belloni, who heard the case without a jury.

A jury, which heard the same evidence, two hours later, convicted co-defendants Kenneth Eugene White, 45, Portland, and Jamie Dean Alexander, 43, Portland.

The teeth were stolen from a shipment from Denver to Portland last year.

Elks Get License Renewed

. . . APPEAL SET

The three-member State Liquor Control Commission has granted a liquor license renewal for Lincoln Elks Lodge No. 80.

The one-year renewal request had been protested by various groups who charged the Elks Lodge with being racially discriminatory in its membership policies.

Michael L. Willey, spokesman for the student Human Relations Insight League, said Friday the license's renewal will be appealed to district court.

The commission's granting of the license on Thursday came one day before the deadline for renewing licenses for 1971-72.

Willey and several other persons had appeared Tuesday at the two-hour commission hearing on the renewal of the request to ask that the license not be granted.

The students, joined by several Lincoln citizens, pointed out that the commission could deny a license "not in good standing in a community." They argued that the Elks Lodge does not meet this requirement because of discriminatory practices.

Two commission members, Chairman Ray Osborn of Lincoln and Commissioner Ivan Armstrong of Ogallala, acknowledged at the hearing that they were members of Elks Lodges. Commissioner Thomas Cheslak of Omaha said he was not an Elk.

Earlier this month, groups unsuccessfully petitioned the City Council to recommend against the Elks license renewal.

Mrs. Dinsmore Says Background Not A Handicap

Lincoln Board of Education candidate Karen E. Dinsmore said Friday she believes her educational background would be valuable as a board member.

In a statement, Mrs. Dinsmore said her "background and training in education has become an issue in this campaign."

"It has been implied that if I am elected, professional educators will have free reign with no control of lay citizens," she said.

But the candidate said her criticism of specific programs proves she is "not an automatic supporter of any and all professional education plans."

"Rather," she said, "I believe that my background and experience will be most valuable to Lincoln parents and taxpayers by being a board member who is able to ask the penetrating questions necessary to require our professional educators to justify the cost and educational worth of their proposals."

Automation Inc. May Sell 'Pig' For Pipe Tests

Beverly Hills, Calif. (AP) — Automation Industries Inc. is testing a device it calls "pig" for use in testing oil pipelines, says John J. Burke, the firm's new president.

Burke told 250 shareholders at the annual meeting Thursday that the "pig" travels through pipelines to provide readings on soundness. Market potential for such a device is good, he said, including possible use in the proposed Alaska oil pipelines.

Burke, former president of Howmet Corp., said the company had a net income of $403,000 or 5 cents a share, for the quarter ended March 31. The company lost $1.8 million, 22 cents a share, for the same 1970 period.

When asked by the attorney for Lincoln City Lines what the city would do should the bond issue fail, the mayor responded: "We will cross that bridge when it comes."

Schwartzkopf also said his office has fielded complaints from passengers complaining about buses not being on time and bus drivers getting out of their buses while on their routes to get a hamburger and soft drink.

Stop Using Buses

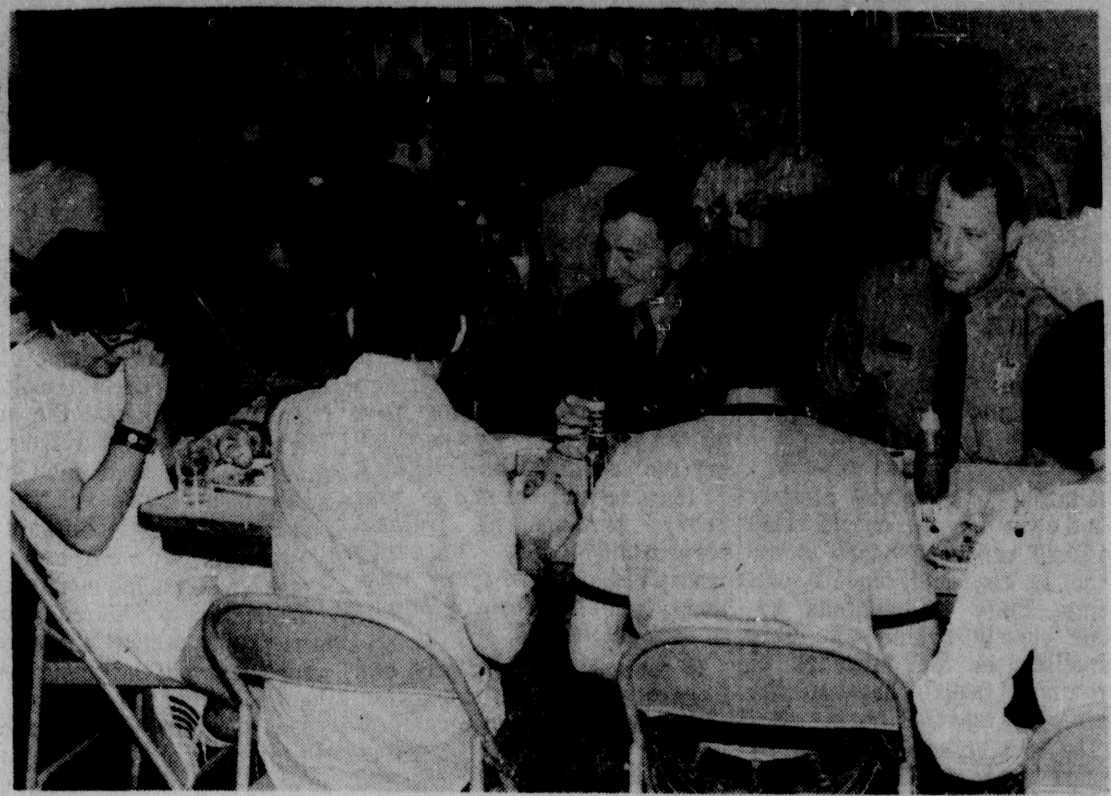

Bob Campbell, a member of the Better Bus Committee said some employees at Miller & Paine have stopped using buses to get to work because of the unavailability of the buses to get them to work on time.

City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger also testified at the hearing that checks were made by his office and by the police department on the dependability of the buses making their routes on schedule.

Holsinger said his office, during a week in March, observed 30 irregularities out of 179 checks, mostly late departures, some as long as 20 minutes late, at the terminal points at a route.

He said the police check in the downtown area during the period of observation produced a 29% irregularity rate, including 34 instances when no bus showed up out of 532 checks and 104 when more than five minutes late.

The project is also designed to "help give the police a better foundation for their concepts of

Policemen, Fraternity Brothers Enjoy 'Feed The Fuzz' Dinners

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

Several Lincoln police officers didn't show up at home for dinner during the past few days but instead attended "Fred the Fuzz" dinners at the Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity house at the University of Nebraska.

Rich Spahr, president of the fraternity, said that the purpose of the dinners was to "try to disestablish the common concept students have of police as a d-beating, club-swinging ogres."

The project is also designed to "help give the police a better foundation for their concepts of students by meaningful and honest communication."

In the program up to five officers are able to go to the house for lunch or supper.

Response Said Good

Sophir said there has been a good response to the project. He said there are plans for holding the dinners again in the fall and possibly expanding them to include the fire department and other service-oriented organizations.

During the meetings, the roles of the police officers are discussed as well as the irrelationship with students. All of the discussions are informal and nearly every aspect of police work is covered.

The proposal for the "Feed the Fuzz" program was brought to Sophir by Keith Cohen, a sophomore from Shawnee, Kan., who had heard of a similar program at the University of Missouri.

Program 'Different'

Cohen said, "A program was needed that was different from those which had been held in the past."

And he felt there was a need for a "change in the fraternity

Elks Get License Renewed

... APPEAL SET

The three-member State Liquor Control Commission has granted a liquor license renewal for Lincoln Elks Lodge No. 80.

The one-year renewal request had been protested by various groups who charged the Elks Lodge with being racially discriminatory in its membership policies.

Michael L. Willey, spokesman for the student Human Relations Insight League, said Friday the license's renewal will be appealed to district court.

The commission's granting of the license on Thursday came one day before the deadline for renewing licenses for 1971-72.

Willey and several other persons had appeared Tuesday at the two-hour commission hearing on the renewal of the request to ask that the license not be granted.

The students, joined by several Lincoln citizens, pointed out that the commission could deny a license "not in good standing in a community." They argued that the Elks Lodge does not meet this requirement because of discriminatory practices.

Two commission members, Chairman Ray Osborn of Lincoln and Commissioner Ivan Armstrong of Ogallala, acknowledged at the hearing that they were members of Elks Lodges. Commissioner Thomas Cheslak of Omaha said he was not an Elk.

Earlier this month, groups unsuccessfully petitioned the City Council to recommend against the Elks license renewal.

Mrs. Dinsmore Says Background Not A Handicap

Lincoln Board of Education candidate Karen E. Dinsmore said Friday she believes her educational background would be valuable as a board member.

In a statement, Mrs. Dinsmore said her "background and training in education has become an issue in this campaign."

"It has been implied that if I am elected, professional educators will have free reign with no control of lay citizens," she said.

But the candidate said her criticism of specific programs proves she is "not an automatic supporter of any and all professional education plans."

"Rather," she said, "I believe that my background and experience will be most valuable to Lincoln parents and taxpayers by being a board member who is able to ask the penetrating questions necessary to require our professional educators to justify the cost and educational worth of their proposals."

Dentist Found Innocent In Plot To Receive Teeth

Portland, Ore. (UPI) — Dr. Lawrence Bernard, a dentist, was found innocent Friday of charges he conspired to receive and conceal 17,850 stolen false teeth.

Bernard was found innocent by U.S. District Judge Robert C. Belloni, who heard the case without a jury.

A jury, which heard the same evidence, two hours later, convicted co-defendants Kenneth Eugene White, 45, Portland, and Jamie Dean Alexander, 43, Portland.

The teeth were stolen from a shipment from Denver to Portland last year.

Thus begins the most amazing account of human experience ever written. And so simply, with just a notation of time: the hour, the day, the very moment!

But like a church bell sounding its call to worship, that simple notation of time has become the clarion of a New Life.

So deeply has it penetrated our preoccupation with the routine of every-day existence that millions gather at sunrise to greet the dawn of each Easter Day.

What has given such meaning to one moment in time?

Its PROMISE: Christ is risen. The One Who said, because I live, ye shall live also—He lives!

Bill Permitting 16-Year-Old Boys To Handle Beer Containers Is Approved

By The Associated Press
Grocery stores may employ carry-out boys as young as 16 to lug containers of beer to the automobiles of customers, when accompanied by an adult, under a bill passed by the Legislature Friday. The same bill permits youths of this age to serve as grocery store stock boys, even if it involves handling beer containers.

Fellow Citizens:

The question has been raised, "What can Erv Peterson do as a mayor that he could not do as a councilman?" I'm happy the opposition brought it up.

The answer is the very heart of the mayoral campaign.

A councilman is a part-time public servant, paid $20 per week for his work. He shares a secretary with the six other council people. He has one vote in seven on the council. It takes a 5-2 council vote to over-ride the mayor's veto.

The mayor is full-time, and receives a salary of nearly $20,000, plus expenses, per year. He has an administrative assistant, a secretary, the department heads, and the entire city work force of nearly 1,800 people under him.

His responsibilities include economic development of the city. He submits a mayor's budget for council consideration. He can introduce ordinances, resolutions, and suggest city legislative action.

Thus the mayor has the same voting weight as three councilmen. He has nearly 1,800 staff people to help him do what he wants done. He has a mayor's office budget, and all other city budgets to use in getting things done for you.

When people ask what a councilman can do, compared to a mayor, it is like comparing apples and oranges. The mayor is the top administrative officer for the city. A councilman is one of seven legislators for the city.

Don't be mis-led by people who want you to think that a councilman can initiate administrative changes easily and quickly. He cannot.

Let's make the mayor's office responsible for the administrative problems of Lincoln I have been discussing. As your mayor I want that responsibility. I won't shirk it or try to hide from it. You can count on that.

Sincerely
Ervin E. Peterson

Vote May 4! Elect Peterson Mayor!

Law previously has prohibited such minors from handling beer containers.

The bill providing exceptions, LB666, was sponsored by Sen. William R. Skarda Jr. of Omaha and was passed 30-11 on final reading.

Another controversial bill passed Friday, with only a couple votes to spare, was Lincoln Sen. Roland A. Luedtke's LB728, which permits couples to obtain marriage licenses in one Nebraska county and be married in a different county.

LB728 also removes from law a prohibition against marriages by imbeciles, feeble-minded persons, or persons adjudged to be afflicted with hereditary insanity, unless such persons have first been sterilized.

The bill also deletes from law a provision that girls under 16 may marry when pregnant and parental consent is given.

LB728 was approved 27-14 in its showdown test.

Other bills passed on final reading (Emergency clause):

- Transferring funds of the Nebraska Armory Board to the Military Department cash fund. LB84. Orme, Elrod, Waldo, 43-2.
- Creating a cash fund known as the Department of Health Reimbursement Fund. LB224. Marvel, 42-0.
- Requiring approval of the telecommunications director before the crime commission can approve acquisition of communications equipment. LB225. Marvel, 41-0.
- Prohibiting the Lincoln School District from establishing a retirement system for new employees supplemental to the school employees retirement system. LB475. Holmquist, 42-0.
- Authorizing the Department of Roads to change the routing of connecting links to interstate highways under certain circumstances. LB738. Epke, Waldo, Warner, 45-4.
- Increasing permit fees required of private business and trade schools and variously refining related law. LB956. Elrod, 44-4.

Senators Save NETV Building

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Friday laid to rest Sen. Terry Carpenter's proposal that the new educational telecommunications building be transformed into a new University of Nebraska College of Law.

Carpenter presented the issue to his colleagues in the form of Resolution 55, requesting the State Building Commission to "delay further construction" of the building until its use is determined by the Legislature.

That motion failed on a 6-23 vote.

East Campus Structure

The building is being constructed on the University's East Campus under a financing arrangement with the City of Lincoln.

Opponents of the Carpenter plan have pointed to estimated costs exceeding one million dollars to convert the facility into a Law College.

Carpenter's resolution said there is "an immediate and pressing need" for new Law College facilities.

The new structure will serve as the headquarters for Nebraska's Educational Television Network which, Carpenter said, is providing more entertainment than education for its viewers.

That, he suggested, was not its intended purpose.

Taken Seriously

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said other senators took Carpenter's proposal so seriously that it "forced him to take the resolution seriously himself."

Sen. David Stahmer of Omaha suggested, with tongue in cheek, that the new building be used to house educational television, the College of Law and a new home economics building for the College of Agriculture.

Voting with Carpenter were Sens. John DeCamp of Neligh, Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, Harold Moylan of Omaha, Loran Schmit of David City and William Skarda of Omaha.

With the TV building issue apparently settled, the Legislature will probably be asked to consider an appropriation to construct a new Law College building when it debates the Appropriations Committee's capital construction budget bill.

Douglas County Civil Service Measure Stalled

A bill establishing a civil service system for Douglas County employees stalled temporarily Friday on select file, the second stage of floor consideration in the Legislature.

A move by Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha to delay advancement of the bill provoked an hour of inconclusive discussion. Proud's motion to delay action fell short, but so did a motion to advance the bill, and the bill continues to rest on select file.

The bill, LB 921, was sponsored chiefly by Sen. William R. Skarda Jr. of Omaha, who said it grows out of a 25-year effort to remove the county's employees from the tides of politics.

Proud sought delay of the bill to check out what he indicated was the concern of Douglas County Hospital employees as to whether they were adequately represented on the civil service commission created by the bill.

Mrs. Faulder Named Panama Postmaster

Whitaker, Kan. — Mrs. Nellie F. Faulder, acting postmaster at Panama, Neb., since November, 1963, has been appointed postmaster, effective May 1. This was announced by J. F. Applegate, acting regional director of the Wichita region of the U.S. Postal Service.

Speedy Trial Bill Signed By Governor

Gov. J. James Exon said Friday he has signed, "with some reservations," a bill designed to insure speedy trials and prompt disposition of criminal cases.

The Legislature earlier had recalled the bill, LB 436, introduced by Sen. David Stahmer of Omaha, at the governor's request for revision. Before being altered, the measure, upon enactment, would have provided the immediate release of some 300 felons from Nebraska jails.

In signing the bill, the governor said, "I do so with some reservations. I am in complete accord with the intent of the bill."

"I am concerned, however," Exon said, "that LB 436 may present a difficult problem of administration. I therefore think it important we enact LB 436 with the understanding that we must carefully follow it in order to make whatever corrections may prove necessary during the next several sessions."

Ord Coed Named NU Rodeo Queen

Chris Ferguson, 20-year-old University of Nebraska-Lincoln coed from Ord, was revealed as the 1971 NU rodeo queen during the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association event held here.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ferguson, she is a junior majoring in English and represented Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Named NU rodeo queen first runner-up was Janice Lee, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton H. Lee of Omaha. She is a freshman majoring in animal science.

FRIDAY IN THE LEGISLATURE 'JUST ONE OF THOSE DAYS'

Things never did go too smoothly during consideration of general file bills Friday afternoon in the Legislature.

Several times senators failed to get the necessary 25 votes for first round advancement and had to ask for a call of the house—a procedure requiring each senator to make himself available for voting.

At one point it appeared a call of the house might be necessary to muster enough votes to raise, or eliminate a previous call.

And then, at 3:20 p.m., all the power in the legislative chamber went off.

Before the lights came back on about four minutes later, Clerk Vincent Brown, without a public address system, had shouted a couple of announcements, and senators, on a hand-raising vote, had adjourned for the weekend.

Among bills advanced from general file was LB 733, introduced by Sen. Calvin Carstens of Avoca, to set up a permit and regulation procedure for the ancient sport of falconry.

Senators Save NETV Building

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Friday laid to rest Sen. Terry Carpenter's proposal that the new educational telecommunications building be transformed into a new University of Nebraska College of Law.

Carpenter presented the issue to his colleagues in the form of Resolution 55, requesting the State Building Commission to "delay further construction" of the building until its use is determined by the Legislature.

That motion failed on a 6-28 vote.

East Campus Structure

The building is being constructed on the University's East Campus under a financing arrangement with the City of Lincoln.

Opponents of the Carpenter plan have pointed to estimated costs exceeding one million dollars to convert the facility into a Law College.

Carpenter's resolution said there is "an immediate and pressing need" for new Law College facilities.

The new structure will serve as the headquarters for Nebraska's Educational Television Network which, Carpenter said, is providing more entertainment than education for its viewers.

That, he suggested, was not its intended purpose.

Taken Seriously

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said other senators took Carpenter's proposal so seriously that it "forced him to take the resolution seriously himself."

Sen. David Stahmer of Omaha suggested, with tongue in cheek, that the new building be used to house educational television, the College of Law and a new home economics building for the College of Agriculture.

Voting with Carpenter were Sens. John DeCamp of Neligh, Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, Harold Moylan of Omaha, Loran Schmit of David City and William Skarda of Omaha.

With the TV building issue apparently settled, the Legislature will probably be asked to consider an appropriation to construct a new Law College building when it debates the Appropriations Committee's capital construction budget bill.

Douglas County Civil Service Measure Stalled

A bill establishing a civil service system for Douglas County employees stalled temporarily Friday on select file, the second stage of floor consideration in the Legislature.

A move by Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha to delay advancement of the bill provoked an hour of inconclusive discussion. Proud's motion to delay action fell short, but so did a motion to advance the bill, and the bill continues to rest on select file.

The bill, LB921, was sponsored chiefly by Sen. William R. Skarda Jr. of Omaha, who said it grows out of a 25-year effort to remove the county's employees from the tides of politics.

Proud sought delay of the bill to check out what he indicated was the concern of Douglas County Hospital employees as to whether they were adequately represented on the civil service commission created by the bill.

Speedy Trial Bill Signed By Governor

Gov. J. James Exon said Friday he has signed, "with some reservations," a bill designed to insure speedy trials and prompt disposition of criminal cases.

The Legislature earlier had recalled the bill, LB436, introduced by Sen. David Stahmer of Omaha, at the governor's request for revision. Before being altered, the measure, upon enactment, would have provided the immediate release of some 300 felons from Nebraska jails.

In signing the bill, the governor said, "I do so with some reservations. I am in complete accord with the intent of the bill."

"I am concerned, however," Exon said, "that LB436 may present a difficult problem of administration. I therefore think it important we enact LB436 with the understanding that we must carefully follow it in order to make whatever corrections may prove necessary during the next several sessions."

FRIDAY IN THE LEGISLATURE 'JUST ONE OF THOSE DAYS'

Things never did go too smoothly during consideration of general file bills Friday afternoon in the Legislature.

Several times senators failed to get the necessary 25 votes for first round advancement and had to ask for a call of the house—a procedure requiring each senator to make himself available for voting.

At one point it appeared a call of the house might be necessary to muster enough votes to raise, or eliminate a previous call.

And then, at 3:20 p.m., all the power in the legislative chamber went off.

Before the lights came back on about four minutes later, Clerk Vincent Brown, without a public address system, had shouted a couple of announcements, and senators, on a hand-raising vote, had adjourned for the weekend.

Among bills advanced from general file was LB733, introduced by Sen. Calvin Carstens of Avoca, to set up a permit and regulation procedure for the ancient sport of falconry.

Bill To Hike School Aid Still Stalled

For the second day in a row, the Legislature Friday was unable to gather sufficient votes to advance from first round floor consideration a revised bill sharply increasing state aid to public schools.

The bill, LB264, failed to advance Friday on a 19-4 vote. The motion to move the measure needed at least 25 votes.

On Thursday, a motion to advance gathered 24 votes.

Kill Motion
Frustrated by the Legislature's inaction, Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff offered a motion to kill the bill.

"I favor this bill," Carpenter said, "but apparently we can't get it off general file. If that's true, we probably couldn't pass it on final reading."

"I don't think we should leave it in limbo."

Carpenter later withdrew his motion at the request of Sen. Orval Keyes of Papillion, chief sponsor of the amended bill.

The Legislature then agreed to attempt to act on the measure next Wednesday.

$80 Million Hike
As amended, LB264 would increase state aid to schools by nearly $80 million a year.

The additional aid would be distributed on the basis of school age child census figures, rather than on a per public school pupil figure.

That change would allocate more assistance to public school districts which hold a large number of private or parochial school children.

"That's the problem in advancing this bill," Keyes told Carpenter. "That's right," he replied.

Drug Abuse Control Bill Is Advanced

By The Associated Press
A comprehensive drug control bill designed to align Nebraska statutes with federal laws was given a push Friday in the Legislature.

The 54-page LB326, sponsored by Sens. John DeCamp of Neligh and Robert Clark of Sidney, was advanced 29-0 from general file and expedited.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff successfully moved to amend one portion of the bill dealing with penalties for first offense possession of marijuana. Carpenter's amendment reduces the maximum jail sentence for that offense from 90 days as provided in the bill to seven days.

"Ninety days is too long," Carpenter said. "I don't think the courts will enforce it."

Also adopted were several committee amendments which DeCamp said were the result of several groups, including the State Crime Commission, "working and reworking" the bill.

DeCamp told the Legislature a federal drug abuse law goes into effect Saturday and Nebraska will be out of compliance until LB326 is passed.

Carpenter also received permission to add the severability clause to the bill. That provides that if any one portion of the bill is declared unconstitutional, the remainder of the bill shall remain valid.

Bill To Provide Site For Armory Advanced, 28-0

The bill had been introduced Wednesday as LB1024 by the Government Committee, at the urging of Sen. Irving Wiltse of Falls City.

The measure calls for an exchange of land between Falls City and the state on the city's promise to provide matching funds for the construction of a new armory on the tract conveyed to the state.

Attorney Files Lawsuit Against 5-Cent Cigarette Tax Hike

A suit has been filed in Lancaster District Court by a Lincoln attorney asking the court to enjoin the State of Nebraska from enforcing the recently passed five-cent tax increase on each pack of cigarettes.

The bill, LB87, was passed last week in the Unicameral on a 31-14 vote of state senators after it had been vetoed by Gov. J. James Exon. The revenue gained from the increased tax is to be used to construct an activities building at the Beatrice State Home, a state office building and a fieldhouse for the University of Nebraska.

The suit, filed by Lawrence C. Sandberg, Jr., of 832 E. Avon Lane, in behalf of himself and all other cigarette smokers in the state, named the State of Nebraska as defendant along with Exon, Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer, State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters and State Treasurer William Swanson.

In Official Capacity Exon, Meyer, Peters and Swanson were named defendants in their official capacity only and not as individuals.

Sandberg charged that the passage of the bill deprives him and others situated similarly of "their property without due process of law," and violates his equal rights by imposing an "objectional, unjust and discriminatory tax" on him and other cigarette smokers.

He claimed that cigarette smokers have "suffered irreparable injury" for which they have no adequate remedy at law unless the provisions of the bill are enjoined by the district court.

The attorney noted that he smokes approximately two packs of cigarettes daily and has done so for many years, thereby having no reason to believe that he will not continue to do so.

Extra 10 cents Daily

If the tax is allowed to stand, he said, he would then be forced to pay an additional tax of at least 10 cents daily.

Sandberg said that the structures for which the tax revenue is to be used are for the "general use and benefit of all of the people" in Nebraska and not solely for the use and benefit of retail purchasers and consumers of cigarettes.

He further charged that the passage of the bill constitutes the attempted enactment of a special law and an attempt to enact and place into force an appropriations bill upon the vote of "less than a sufficient number of legislators" in violation to the state constitution.

Sandberg noted that "in spite of the law's being void and unenforceable" for those reasons, the tax commissioner has implemented and begun enforcement and will continue to do so unless permanently enjoined by the district court.

Pollution Meet Set

The Nebraska Water Pollution Control Council meeting will be held May 14 at 9:30 a.m. in Room 1009 in the State Capitol building.

Two Lincoln students, Eugene L. Hohensee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer D. Hohensee of 5221 Pioneers Blvd., and Richard Sherman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester L. Sherman of 3402 S. will graduate as honor scholars in June with law degrees from New York University.

Tokyo (AP) — Five hundred persons watched scientists in a museum remove a mummy's ancient coverings and study the 700-year-old body, which is on loan to Japan from Peru. Closed circuit television was set up for the overflow crowd of observers.

Offutt Aerospace Museum Building To Be Redrawn As Exhibition Hall

The State Game Commission Friday directed architectural plans for the Aerospace Museum at Offutt Air Force Base be modified from a visitor center to an exhibition hall.

Plans for the museum were discussed at a commission meeting attended by Gov. J. James Exon and members of the governor's advisory committee to the project, appointed by former Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

The commission had before it for final approval a plan for the immediate construction of a $240,000 visitor center at the site.

Need Greater

However, the committee, represented by Charles W. Durham of Omaha, contended an exhibition building to house artifacts is needed more than a visitor center in the initial development of the aerospace museum complex.

Durham suggested a pre-relocated building of 20,000 square feet with parking for 150 cars could be erected for the approximate cost of the proposed 9,000-square-foot visitor center.

The exhibition hall could accommodate a modest visitor center, he said, until a separate building, as envisioned for the center, could be constructed.

Commission Chairman James Colombo of Omaha said the wishes of the advisory committee were not known until well after plans for the visitor center had been given preliminary approval.

'Misunderstanding'

Exon said there appeared to have been "misunderstandings" over the project in the past, and asked the commission and advisory committee to reach a decision collectively.

Sen. Orval Keyes of Papillion, who authorized the $260,000 rider to the 1969 budget bill for the museum, said there was a "rumor" the money might not be reappropriated this session.

But Exon said he had assurances the unexpended money would be reappropriated, adding it had been recommended by his budget.

In directing Omaha architect Willis Regier to develop new plans for the museum along the lines of the advisory committee's recommendations, the commission indicated any construction start would depend upon reappropriation of the $260,000 construction fund for the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

NFO Plans Corn, Hogs Hold Action

Corning, Iowa (AP) — The National Farmers Organization called for a "marketing vacation" effective Monday on the selling of hogs and corn.

NFO president Oren Lee Staley said the organization's members have said the organization's members have been advised to stop selling hogs and corn at 8 a.m., Monday, May 5.

"Farmers are being robbed with hogs selling at 15 to 16 cents a pound and the consumer still paying about the same price for pork as when hogs were much higher," said Staley in announcing the action.

Staley said meat packers and grain buyers with NFO signed contracts for hogs and corn will not be affected by the action.

He did not say how long the vacation—or holding action—would stay in effect.

Staley added that non-NFO members would be asked to join the organization in holding hogs and corn off the market.

"The farmers are being taken advantage of," Staley added, "and the NFO is offering farmers the opportunity to use their economic strength to stop low prices."

The marketing vacation comes three months after a similar NFO project with hogs. The organization claims a hog boost started in January helped boost hog prices by $3 to $4 a hundredweight at top weights.

$70.9 Million Loan Aids Germany's Airline Industry

Washington (AP) — The U.S. Export-Import Bank has announced it will support a $250.3 million sale of U.S. jet aircraft to the West German airline Lufthansa with two loans totaling $70.9 million.

One loan of $53.8 million will help finance the purchase of up to seven DC-10 jet aircraft from the McDonnell Douglas Corporation with General Electric CF6 engines, spare engines, equipment and services costing $193.4 million.

The other export-import bank loan is $17.1 million dollars and will help finance the purchase of three Boeing 727s and one Boeing 747 jet aircraft with related goods and services costing $65.9 million.

$10,000 Asked By Man Unhappy With Pet's Burial

Pittsburgh (UPI) — A man who was dissatisfied with the burial of his pet collie, "Shane," filed suit against the dog cemetery, asking more than $10,000 damages.

Stanley Sulkowski, 60, told the court he paid the Crestview Pet Cemetery $50 to bury Shane in a coffin, 4 feet under the ground with a marker. He said he later discovered the 10-year-old collie was buried only 10 inches beneath the surface of the earth in a cabbage crate.

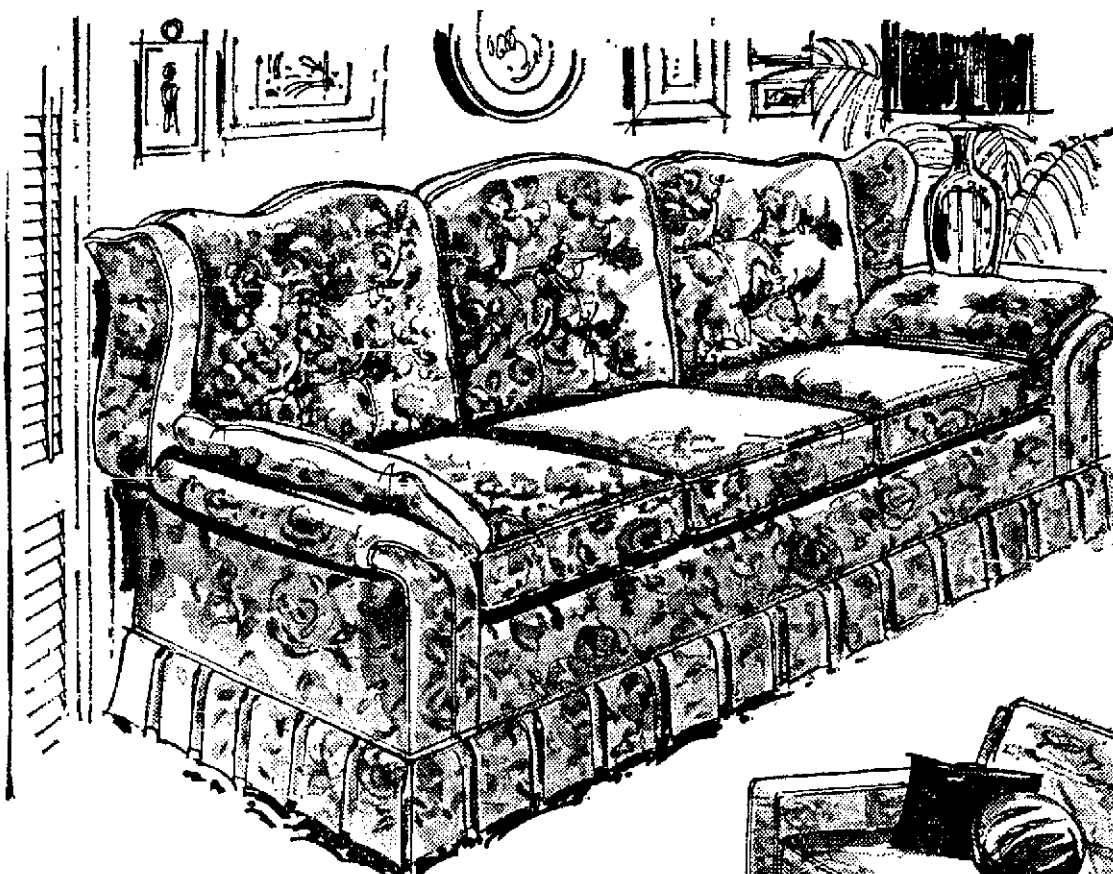

The dog owner said the discovery caused him "severe mental anguish" and forced him to pay another pet cemetery $55 to dig up the dog's body and bury it "properly."

Attorney Files Lawsuit Against 5-Cent Cigarette Tax Hike

A suit has been filed in Lancaster District Court by a Lincoln Attorney asking the court to enjoin the State of Nebraska from enforcing the recently passed five-cent tax increase on each pack of cigarettes.

The bill, LB87, was passed last week in the Unicameral on a 31-14 vote of state senators after it had been vetoed by Gov. J. James Exon. The revenue gained from the increased tax is to be used to construct an activities building at the Beatrice State Home, a state office building and a fieldhouse for the University of Nebraska.

The suit, filed by Lawrence C. Sandberg, Jr., of 832 E. Avon Lane, in behalf of himself and all other cigarette smokers in the state, named the State of Nebraska as defendant along with Exon, Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer, State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters and State Treasurer William Swanson.

In Official Capacity Exon, Meyer, Peters and Swanson were named defendants in their official capacity only and not as individuals.

Sandberg charged that the passage of the bill deprives him and others situated similarly of "their property without due process of law," and violates his equal rights by imposing an "objectional, unjust and discriminatory tax" on him and other cigarette smokers.

He claimed that cigarette smokers have "suffered irreparable injury" for which they have no adequate remedy at law unless the provisions of the bill are enjoined by the district court.

The attorney noted that he smokes approximately two packs of cigarettes daily and has done so for many years, thereby having no reason to believe that he will not continue to do so.

Extra 10 cents Daily If the tax is allowed to stand, he said, he would then be forced to pay an additional tax of at least 10 cents daily.

Sandberg said that the structures for which the tax revenue is to be used are for the "general use and benefit of all of the people" in Nebraska and not solely for the use and benefit of retail purchasers and consumers of cigarettes.

He further charged that the passage of the bill constitutes the attempted enactment of a special law and an attempt to enact and place into force an appropriations bill upon the vote of "less than a sufficient number of legislators" in violation to the state constitution.

Sandberg noted that "in spite of the law's being void and unenforceable" for those reasons, the tax commissioner has implemented and begun enforcement and will continue to do so unless permanently enjoined by the district court.

Offutt Aerospace Museum Building To Be Redrawn As Exhibition Hall

The State Game Commission Friday directed architectural plans for the Aerospace Museum at Offutt Air Force Base be modified from a visitor center to an exhibition hall.

Plans for the museum were discussed at a commission meeting attended by Gov. J. James Exon and members of the governor's advisory committee to the project, appointed by former Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

The commission had before it for final approval a plan for the immediate construction of a $240,000 visitor center at the site.

Need Greater

However, the committee, represented by Charles W. Durham of Omaha, contended an exhibition building to house artifacts is needed more than a visitor center in the initial development of the aerospace museum complex.

Durham suggested a pre-fabricated building of 20,000 square feet with parking for 150 cars could be erected for the approximate cost of the proposed 9,000-square-foot visitor center.

The exhibition hall could accommodate a modest visitor center, he said, until a separate building, as envisioned for the center, could be constructed.

Commission Chairman James Colombo of Omaha said the wishes of the advisory committee were not known until well after plans for the visitor center had been given preliminary approval.

'Misunderstanding'

Exon said there appeared to have been "misunderstandings" over the project in the past, and asked the commission and advisory committee to reach a decision collectively.

Sen. Orval Keyes of Papillion, who authorized the $260,000 rider to the 1969 budget bill for the museum, said there was a "rumor" the money might not be reappropriated this session.

But Exon said he had assurances the unexpended money would be reappropriated, adding it had been recommended by his budget.

In directing Omaha architect Willis Regier to develop new plans for the museum along the lines of the advisory committee's recommendations, the commission indicated any construction start would depend upon reappropriation of the $260,000 construction fund for the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

NFO Plans Corn, Hogs Hold Action

Corning, Iowa (AP) — The National Farmers Organization called for a "marketing vacation" effective Monday on the selling of hogs and corn.

NFO president Oren Lee Staley said the organization's members have said the organization's members have been advised to stop selling hogs and corn at 8 a.m., Monday, May 5.

"Farmers are being robbed with hogs selling at 15 to 16 cents a pound and the consumer still paying about the same price for pork as when hogs were much higher," said Staley in announcing the action.

Staley said meat packers and grain buyers with NFO signed contracts for hogs and corn will not be affected by the action.

He did not say how long the vacation—or holding action—would stay in effect.

Staley added that non-NFO members would be asked to join the organization in holding hogs and corn off the market.

"The farmers are being taken advantage of," Staley added, "and the NFO is offering farmers the opportunity to use their economic strength to stop low prices."

The marketing vacation comes three months after a similar NFO project with hogs. The organization claims a hoglift started in January helped boost hog prices by $3 to $4 a hundredweight at top weights.

New Coed Visiting Policy Endorsed By NU Council

Star Staff Writer

The right of students to entertain guests of the opposite sex in their rooms would be left up to adult students and parents under a policy endorsed Friday by the University of Nebraska Council on Student Life.

The policy, which would permit limited coed visitation hours for those campus living units which chose them, is the result of months of work by a special committee of students.

It had previously won endorsement of the campus housing policy committee, a standing subcommittee of the Council on Student (CSL).

Forwarded To Soshnik

The action taken Friday by CSL, which is composed of students, faculty members and administrators, will forward the policy to NU-Lincoln President Joseph Soshnik for his review.

Students said they expected the Board of Regents might consider it before the current semester ends.

On a one-year trial basis, the policy would permit individual on-campus living units, such as dormitory floors, co-op houses, fraternities and sororities, to approve student guest privileges on a three-fourths vote of the members.

Limited Hours

Once adopted, however, the living unit would have to agree to provisions of the policy which limit the hours for guest rights.

The policy also calls for separate living provisions, such as an entire dorm floor, for those students who chose not to participate in the guest hours program.

And the policy calls for parental consent for those students younger than legal age.

"All students who plan to live in an on-campus housing unit with a guest hours policy and are not of legal age (20 years old) must obtain parental consent," the policy states.

"This consent will be made in the form of a signed statement (made available by the university)."

'Remove Responsibility'

The policy statement says that procedure will serve to "remove from the university the responsibility of selecting a social environment for the student and place it with student and parent," as well as "serve to inform parents of the type of social regulations in on-campus housing."

Guest hours would be limited to 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. weekdays, but would begin at 11 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday and end an hour past midnight Friday and Saturday.

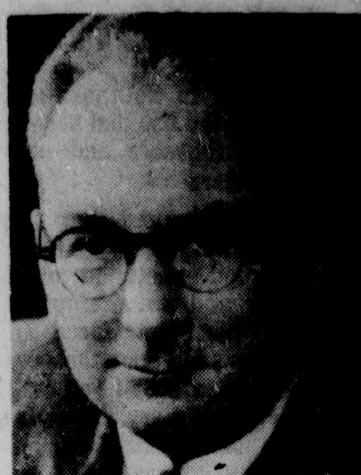

The student committee said its research showed that several colleges in the region, including Doane at Crete and Creighton University in Omaha, have student guest programs.

A recent survey nationwide, it said, showed 86% of colleges have such policies.

The NU program would replace current "open house" policies which provide for open-door room visits only on special, formal occasions.

ELMO ROPER

Elmo Roper Dies At 70; Pollster Hebron Native

Norwalk, Conn. (AP) — Elmo Roper, one of the nation's leading pollsters, died at a Norwalk hospital Friday. He was 70.

Mr. Roper had been hospitalized for several months, a family spokesman said at his home in West Redding.

He was a native of Hebron, Neb., and entered the field of marketing research in 1933.

He was senior consultant and director of the Roper Research Associates Inc. at the time of his death.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, will deliver the eulogy, a spokesman for the Roper organization said.

Mr. Roper received an honorary doctorate degree from the University of Nebraska in 1965. He made frequent trips to Nebraska and especially to Hebron where he had farming interests.

A pioneer in modern survey research, Mr. Roper conducted the first poll published in this country. It was the Fortune Survey of Public Opinion, published every month in the business magazine from 1935 until 1950, the spokesman said.

Mr. Roper first came to prominence in 1936, when he correctly predicted Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential election victory over Alf Landon.

In recent years, one of his associates said, Mr. Roper was mainly concerned with three issues — environment, population control and the concept of an Atlantic union. In connection with his concern for the environment, Mr. Roper actively fought to save the nation's railroad service from cutbacks.

He was a director of several corporations, including the Encyclopedia Britannica Corp., Tiffany & Co., and Home Life Insurance Co.

In 1942, he was elected president of the Market Research Council.

During World War II, Mr. Roper worked in a number of government agencies and was deputy director of the Office of Strategic Services from 1942 to 1945. He was also a consultant to the U.S. Navy and U.S. Army Air Forces.

He served as a member of the Connecticut Civil Rights Committee, vice chairman of the Population Crisis Committee, former chairman of the board of directors of the Fund for Republic, a member of the National Book Committee and editor-at-large of the Saturday Review.

In 1968, Mr. Roper told a meeting of the American Statistical Association in Chicago the disrepute into which polls had fallen was more the fault of politicians than the pollsters.

He said some politicians commission their own polls, then release only those results that reflect favorably upon them or their political friends.

Price Names Kansas Citan King's Official

James L. Peterson of Kansas City, Mo., has been appointed president of King's Food Host USA.

L. C. Price of Lincoln, who founded the company in 1955 and has served as its president continuously since that time, will become chairman of the board.

Peterson, a graduate of the University of Missouri at Kansas City, joined the King's organization in 1967 as general manager for the Kansas and Missouri territory. He became a vice president in 1968, but continued in the same managerial capacity. Prior to this, he was associated with the Nash Finch Co.

Price, in a statement to company employees, said it is impractical for him to continue alone in both operational and administrative responsibilities. He plans to devote a major share of his time to "innovation and the development of ideas."

King's now operate 145 restaurants in 17 of the states.

Lawn Mower Stolen

Police reported a lawn mower valued at $636 was stolen sometime between Monday and Friday morning from the Spilker Farm Equipment Co., 2940 Cornhusker Hwy.

Yeutter Says Country Needs To Go Forward With Reason

Dr. Clayton Yeutter of Washington, D.C., said Friday that America needs to regain its sense of direction, accentuate the positive and move forward.

Speaking at the 1971 Law Day observance in Lincoln, Yeutter said this nation seems "more worried about collapsing than figuring out how to go forward."

Yeutter, now the U.S. Department of Agriculture's consumer marketing administrator, is a former University of Nebraska faculty member and executive assistant to former Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

'Law And Reason'

He spoke on this year's Law Day theme, "Channel Change Through Law and Reason."

Suggesting that the United States is in the process of lowering its profile in international affairs, Yeutter said we've learned it not necessary to "impose our system on any country."

"We need to move forward," he said, "and look forward with excitement about what this country can be in by the year 2000."

Yeutter suggested governmental and business leaders who "don't compromise principles for expediency" are needed.

Harking to the 1970 elections which turned out the greatest number of incumbents in history, Yeutter said, "We've got to elect people who will forget about re-election and do what is right. We need politicians of candor, courage and principle."

Counterfeit Bills Reported Passed

Lincoln police reported Friday that two local businesses have received counterfeit $20 and $10 bills during the last week and requested citizens to notify the police department immediately if anyone should come into contact with more of these bills.

The phony $20 bills list the serial number L17963979 and the $10 bills list serial number L78196494.

Baseball Scribes Interview Each Other At Derby

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Louisville, Ky. (AP) — When you go to the Derby, you've got to talk to the horses.

It's a ritual. It's tradition. Anywhere else you can get by, showing up in time for the bugle call for the featured race. Not in this land of "My Old Kentucky Home."

Newsman get up at dawn and rush to the backstretch of old Churchill Downs. They wade through mud and manure. They watch workouts they don't understand. They interview trainers over the rail posts and inhale the aroma of hay and liniment.

Baseball writers in hard boots, they usually wind up interviewing each other. Except for a small, hard core of very knowledgeable turf writers, most of them don't know a fetlock from a metacarpus—and couldn't care less.

Yet on days just prior to the big race at Churchill Downs, they form small, inquisitive clusters and weave through the rows of green-thatched barns searching for tidbits of useless information like tykes hunting for Easter eggs.

"Who's that fat man over there?"

"That John Campo."

"Oh, let's talk to him."

Campo, a bulbous, a free-talking man who resembles Ernest Borgnine of the movies and who trains Jim French, is immediately surrounded.

A prestigious race like the Derby must give a trainer goose pimples, someone tosses out a piece of bait.

"Now, just another horse race," Campo replies. "Winning is the thing—winning and money."

"Suppose you had a choice of winning the Derby or 20 smaller races with a greater total purse," another man asks, "which would you prefer?"

"I'll take the 20 smaller races," says Campo, a public trainer who works for 11 different owners.

A 1971 Cadillac—one of two Campo owns—drives up and out of the back seat steps a pudgy little boy.

"My son, John, Jr.," explains Campo. "Doesn't he look just like me?"

"Who's going to win the Derby?" Papa Campo asks his offspring, aged four and already 80 pounds.

"My daddy," the youngster answers resolutely.

"What's the name of the horse?"

"Jim French."

Papa plants an appreciative kiss on the lad's cheek.

Somebody notices Reggie Cornell, also a big man, trainer for Mrs. Gene Markey's Calumet Farm, leaning against the barn.

"How about Campo and Cornell as a Weight Watchers' double?" a man quips.

"I weight 240, what do you weigh, Reggie?" Campo asks.

"A hundred and some," Cornell replies glumly.

Cornell's two horses, Eastern Fleet and Bold and Able, have extraordinarily luxurious quarters in line with Calumet's affluence.

A special screened-in foyer has been built in front of the stalls. A mosquito couldn't penetrate it. Brushes and other equipment are kept in surgically immaculate cabinets. Everything, even the hay bags, are painted red.

What does Cornell think of the race?

"Eastern Fleet will win it and Bold and Able will be right on his tail," Cornell predicts blatantly. He says Bold and Able is faster but Eastern Fleet is bigger and has more staying power.

The sun climbs in the sky. Horses in blankets — unrecognizable horses — are walked monotonously by their grooms around the barns — "Watch out, don't get on the right side — you're liable to get kicked. Uniformed guards stand watch at every entrance.

Some horses are working out on the track. Handlers check stop watches. Some newsmen haul out stop watches, too. Exercise boys and girls swarm over the premises. The kitchen, a white cottage, where two eggs, bacon and coffee costs only a buck, is doing a thriving business."

The smell of future fertilizer grows stronger. The backstretch parade of newsmen continues — in clusters of 10 and 12.

The thoroughbreds are treated like fragile china. No outsider is allowed to get too close. They're like human beings, the trainers say. They have to be coddled and pampered.

"Jim French is a moody horse — he gets bored if he stays in one place too long," says John Campo.

"They're both good horses — a different personality but alike in that they love to run," says Reggie Cornell, of the Calumet twins.

Knight Counter, Louisville-owned and Louisville-trained, has a "fetish for cleanliness," says Vic "Whitey" Boleski, the trainer who lives just down the road. "He hides his mess in the stall—like a house cat."

Over in Barn 44, Alcee Richard, a slight little man in business suit and spectacles, says it's true that the owner of List, Mrs. Joe Brown, has imposed an embargo on interviews.

"She probably has her reasons," Richard says. "Personally, I like newsmen." List, a big, strong horse, is gaining in favor.

A half-mile away, the Derby's longest long shot, Fourulla, eats his hay in almost complete privacy. He's quartered with platers and allowance runners. Few venture to his barn.

"That's okay," says Canadian-born A. H. Sullivan, the colt's owner, breeder, trainer and groom. "They'll know him Saturday after he wins the Derby."

Stopper Kurosaki Blanks Pokes, 9-0

... HUSKERS DIVIDE WITH OSU

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Ryan Kurosaki says he has a lot of confidence in the way catcher Randy Spiels calls for his different pitches.

Spiels must have called for the right pitches at the right time Friday as Nebraska shut out Oklahoma State, 9-0, behind the two-hit pitching of Kurosaki. Kurosaki, only a freshman, raised his record to 4-1 and has given up only one unearned run in the last 24 innings.

The Cowboys won the opening game of a Big Eight doubleheader, 5-1, at the NU diamond with a final nine-inning game scheduled for 1 p.m. today.

"Randell called a good game for me," Kurosaki said. "It really helps to have a guy like him catching."

However Spiels gives most of the credit to Kurosaki and so does NU coach Tony Sharpe. "Ryan had good stuff and moved the ball around well," Sharpe said.

"If the pitching is good, the other players tend to play better ball. I believe most of the game is pitching. You have to have good pitching if you want to win."

In the first game Pat Elgert made his first appearance on the mound for Nebraska and Oklahoma State pounded out 12 hits and scored five runs, all of which were earned.

"Pat tightened up and started trying to guide the ball and got into trouble," Sharpe explained. "But it was only Pat's first try at pitching, so he was expected to make some mistakes."

The Huskers scored first in the second inning with successive walks to Spiels and Bob Munson setting up the play. Then freshman Tom Novak, a Northeast graduate making his first appearance this year, bounced a double over the outfield fence scoring Spiels.

The rest of the game belonged to the Cowboys and their reliever Dave Sewell, who came in during the second inning to put down the NU rally.

Oklahoma State scored two runs in the third and three in the fifth to take the win. Frank Kellner capped the fifth with a three-run homer, the first in his career at OSU.

The second game was a different story as Steve Achelpohl started the Huskers off in the first inning with a leadoff homer.

Nebraska's big inning was the fourth when five runs crossed the plate highlighted by Munson's two-run home run and Elgert's double. The Huskers added three insurance runs in the sixth to seal the win.

"I was pleased with the 'rookies' play," Sharpe said. "Four freshmen started in the Louisville (AP) — The calm before the storm settled over Churchill Downs Friday on the eve of the 97th Kentucky Derby, richest renewal in the history of America's favorite horse race.

Brief workouts, leisurely gallops and strolls through the rich bluegrass in the stable area where the order of the day for the 20 horses expected to answer the call to the post at 4:30 p.m., CDT.

"There's nothing else I can do now but take it easy and wait. It's all up to the horse and the rider," one trainer said in echoing the feelings of all the others. The defection of Mrs. Taylor Hardin's Solo Mio, suffering from what trainer Woody Stephens thinks is a flareup of an old injury, left the derby pot at $185,000, with $145,000 going to the winner.

The record for the Derby, which will be seen live on television CBS, 4-5 p.m., CDT and heard on radio 4:30-5 p.m., was the $170,000 gross purse last year, when Dust Commander collected $127,800 for his victory.

Sent through their final blowouts Friday morning were Arthur A. Seeligson's Unconscious, Roger W. Wilson's Helio Rise, Pastoral Stables' Twist The Axe, Don Ball's Going Straight and Charles M. Day's Saigon Warrior.

Unconscious, this year's West Coast champion, breezed three furlongs in :37.35 with trainer John Canty saying he caught the last eighth in "eleven and change."

A mixup in travel plans put exercise boy Bobby Menell aboard the Prince Royal II colt for the workout with jockey Laffit Pincay to arrive later in the day from California for the Derby ride.

Jockey Kenny Knapp was up for Helio Rise's final sprint, a half-mile in 48 second flat.

Eric Guerin, the oldest rider in the Derby this year at 46, took Twist The Axe half a mile in :47.3-5, missing the time ordered by trainer George Poole by less than half a second. Going Straight was a full second slower for the same distance and Saigon Warrior went three furlongs in 36 seconds.

Calumet Farm's duo of Eastern Fleet and Bold And Able, the probable favorites for the 1-mile Derby, took it easy on the final day before the big race.

Trainer Reggie Cornell took the opportunity to school Eastern Fleet, the Florida Derby winner, in the gate a few extra times. "He can be kind of a funny horse in the gate because he's so big," the trainer said.

Bold And Able merely galloped around the track and a very confident John Campo sent Santa Anita Derby winner Jim French onto the track with the same instructions.

"He galloped a mile and a quarter today and will do the same tomorrow," the outspoken Campo said.

Jockey Angel Cordero Jr., was aboard Jim French and reported later he sang to the horse throughout the gallop.

In other barns, all was quiet in the final hours before an estimated 100,000 fans converge on the equine contest that lasts just about two minutes.

Bucks Trounce Bullets

Baltimore (AP) — Oscar Robertson and Lew Alcindor combined for 57 points as the Milwaukee Bucks trounced the Baltimore Bullets 118-106 to complete a four-game sweep in the National Basketball Association championship playoff final Friday night.

The crippled Bullets took a 15-10 lead at the outset before the Bucks ran off a 12-1 string to go ahead 22-16 and remained in front the rest of the way.

The Bullets made their last gasp by scoring the first six points of the third quarter to move within 60-53, but the Bucks ran off another 10-point string to wrap it up.

Milwaukee, a third year expansion team which drafted Alcindor two seasons ago and then traded for Robertson before this year, held the Bullets to an average of only 94 points in the series.

The Bucks averaged only 106 points per game, but with Alcindor controlling the boards and taking away Baltimore's inside game, they didn't need to generate much offense.

Fred Carter topped Baltimore with 28 points. Kevin Loughery had 18. Wes Unseld scored nine points, but had 23 rebounds and 10 assists.

Earl Monroe, hobbled with a groin injury, scored 12 points and Gus Johnson, who faces knee operations next month, came back to action for the final game, but was able to score only 11 points.

Confidence Reaps First Day Rewards

... JOEY BOB, COLOR ME NEW AK-SAR-BEN WINNERS

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — There's nothing like having confidence in your horse reap benefits on opening day.

That's what O. J. Glass and Jack Van Berg discovered in watching their prized three-year-olds capture victories in the split division of the $10,000 Inaugural Handicap during opening day activities Friday at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Francesco Top-Weighted In Beef State Handicap

Omaha — Francesco, the top half of an A. J. Moldell entry, has been assigned top weight of 120 pounds for Saturday's Beef State Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Francesco will break from the No. 3 post position and stablemate Iron Control from the No. 1 hole. Highly-regarded Plum Run, carrying 113 pounds, drew the sixth post position in the 11-horse field.

Paul Kemling's Bold Accent, which had a great season at Fanner Park, gets in at just 109 pounds and drew the No. 2 post position for the six furlong dash.

Glass, who nominated Color Me New for the Kentucky Derby in early January, was more than satisfied after the brown colt triumphed in the first division and Van Berg, who recently began training Joey Bob, was also pleased with his colt's win in the second division.

Joey Bob, with Leroy Moyers in the saddle, snapped the four-straight win skein of Miss Spy Song and the 5 1/2 furlong track record with a blazing 1:02. That toppled the 1:02.45 set by Crying For More on May 31, 1969.

"I knew he was sharp today," said Van Berg, who co-owns the speedster with former major league baseball player Joe Adcock. "When we first got him he was run down — I guess his system wasn't working right."

But Van Berg and Adcock worked the horse into shape and Friday Van Berg admitted, "this might be a real nice horse."

Trailing Miss Spy Song throughout the race, Moyers said he moved the horse on the back turn for home because he didn't want to let the heavily favored Miss Spy Song gain too much of a lead. Joey Bob raced through the stretch and won by six lengths.

"I guess I timed it pretty well," said the second leading jockey at the recently concluded Fair Grounds meet in New Orleans.

The victory was worth $5,500 to the winners while Miss Spy Song, after surviving a foul claim by show horse Dancing Hank, earned $1,900 for owners Donald Clugston and Rex Ekwall and Dancing Hank picked up $1,400 for owner Lowell Hankins.

Color Me New, George Hallock's Wise Crete and Vern Martin's Overproof picked up the same purses for their showing in the first division in the handicap which had attracted 34 nominations.

"Moyers has ridden for us before at Suffolk Downs and the Fair Grounds," said Van Berg, "but I don't know if he'll stay here for the whole meet or not."

In raising his lifetime earnings to $37,852, Joey Bob returned $11.20, $3.60 and $3.20 while Miss Spy Song paid $3.00, $2.60 and Dancing Hank returned $3.60.

While Joey Bob won handily, Color Me New captured a head decision over Wise Crete after the two had battled throughout for the lead.

"I thought he would win by more, but I was pretty confident he'd win," said Glass. "And I didn't even pick him out."

Rex Ladd, who owns and trains horses at Ak-Sar-Ben, picked the horse at an auction, and all Glass did was pay him.

"He didn't come around enough for the Derby so I decided to run him here," said Glass. "He looks like he's going to be one of my best animals."

Color Me New, in racing to a 1:03.2-5 clocking over the fast track and increasing his lifetime earnings to $12,653, returned $27.00, $10.80, and $7.20 and Wise Crete paid $10.60 and $6.60 while Overproof showed $5.20.

Ridden by Rodolfo Calderon, Color Me New battled Wise Crete, ridden by George Munsell, throughout the race. Mr. Billy C. and Stromvogal, both high-weighted at 120 pounds, were never challenging as Mr. Billy C. finished seventh and Stormvogal eighth.

The 15,122 patrons wavered $964,184 to establish records for an opening day attendance and mutual handle. The previous records were set last year when 14,124 nished $779,963 through the windows.

North Platte — They ought to rename the Trans-Nebraska Conference Track and Field championships the "Grand Island Benefit."

The Islanders swept to their seventh straight league title here Friday, amassing 70 1/2 points to 60 for runnerup Hastings. Lincoln High was third with 41.

Grand Island hasn't lost the cinder championship since the conference was formed and the perennial track power doesn't look like it's going to abdicate the throne in the near future. A host of underclassmen were among the point-getters for the victors.

The double triumph by discus-throw specialist Ron Loewenstein is typical of the Islanders' depth.

Loewenstein, who owns the best Class A discus toss of the year, equalled his best to win that event. But in his own team's tryouts earlier in the week he failed to qualify for the shot put.

So he tried out for the long jump and triple jump, though he hadn't competed in either event since the eighth grade.

He not only represented his school, but in the triple jump beat five of the top ten leapers in the state while establishing a record for the new Trans-event.

Loewenstein's winning distance of 41-6 3/4 won't make the top ten chart, but jumping under the same conditions he topped state leader Steve Brittenham of Lincoln Southeast (3rd), teammate George Kyros, second in the state but who failed to place, Lincoln High's Ralph Henderson, third in the state and second here, Mark Munger of Hastings, fourth in the state but who also failed to place, and Lincoln High's Steve Moore, seventh in the state (4th).

In addition to the new triple jump record, four other marks were broken and another tied.

Lincoln High's Ken Adkins snapped the oldest standard on the books when he cleared 6-3 3/4 in the high jump, tumbling the 1995 record of North Platte's Dale Chase.

Adkins was again one of the busiest competitors. In addition to his high jump blue ribbon he was second in the low hurdles, and fifth in the triple jump.

Harris Boys Boost Links To Golf Title

Lincoln High, behind 76-stroke performances by the Harris brothers, Dan and Steve, swept the Trans-Nebraska golfing crown at Holmes Friday with a 321 team total.

Jeff Gaskins from Lincoln Northeast captured medalist honors with a sudden-death hole birdie. He was tied with the Harris's at the end of 18, but put things out of reach on the first extra hole. Dan Harris took second while Steve finished third.

Local Gals First, Third In Quantic Relays
Quantic, Va. (AP) — Lincoln's Carol Frost heaved the discus 165-4, almost 10 feet farther than her nearest competitor, while placing first Friday in the 15th annual Quantic Relays and earning a berth on the U.S. Pan American games team.

Her teammate, Rance Klechka, both of whom were competing with the Nebraska Track Club, finished third with a 155-8 heave, only one inch behind runner-up Monette Driscoll of the Long Beach Track Club.

NWU Hosts Bellevue, Should Improve State
Nebraska Wesleyan's baseball team should hike its record to 12-9 today after starting out the week with a dismal 4-9 mark.

The Plainsmen host Bellevue at Sherman Field in a non-conference doubleheader starting at 1 p.m. today after whipping the same Sarpy County club, 4-3 and 8-0, Wednesday at Gretna. Concordia fell twice in a twin bill, 4-3 and 8-7, Thursday bringing NWU to its current 10-9 record.

Greeno Reunion Scheduled Today At Wood-Dakota Relays

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer
Sioux Falls, S.D. — When the 47th annual Howard Wood-Dakota Relays get underway here today, it will also be a small reunion for the Greeno family.

Nebraska Wesleyan coach Woody Greeno not only returns to his home state but also will see his brother, Rich, who coaches the Lincoln High School track team here. Rich's teams have won three straight state track titles and added the state cross country crown last fall.

Rich's team is favored to capture a lot of honors in the Class A high school division while Woody's team is expected to take several honors in the college division in the meet today.

However, both will receive stiff competition in a meet that is rated one of the best in the Upper Midwest.

Most of the competition for NWU will come from Nebraska colleges with Doane, Hastings, Kearney and Peru the strongest entries. Nebraskans will defend titles in two relays and three individual events.

Hastings won both the sprint medley and 440-yard relays last year but will have a difficult time repeating.

NWU has run the sprint medley in 3:27.8 compared to Hastings' winning time of 3:32.8 last year. In the 440 the Tigers from Crete have a :41.4 while Hastings won in :42.6 last year.

Like most of the times this season for state college teams, the sprint medley time for NWU and Doane's 440 is among or is the best ever in state college ranks for Nebraska.

The Plainsmen's Harvey Meyer won the javelin here last year with a toss of 201-10 and has a 212 this year but if Peru's Jim Hinton has overcome his sore arm, he'll be the favorite. Hinton threw 228 early in the season.

Doane has two defending champions — Rich Zenger in the long jump and Burrell Williams in the 100.

Williams has the best chance to repeat here when he ran a :09.6 at the Drake Relays last week tying a school record. Zenger has gone 24 feet but on scratches this year and may have to jump that far to win today.

Doane and Hastings are the strongest teams in the 880-yard relay but the Tigers have the edge running a 1:24.9, also at Drake last week and the fastest ever in state college ranks.

Kearney and NWU are expected to be the front-runners in the two-mile relay with the Antelopes owning a 7:35.3, also clocked at Drake last week and the fastest ever in state college ranks.

Jack Weyers of Peru is one of the favorites in three-mile and will be joined by teammates Jay Hagerman and Dave Harris in the mile. Weyers is expected to break 14:00 in the three-mile and has ran the mile in 4:08.1 while Hagerman has a 4:13.1 in the mile and Harris a 4:13.4.

Tyrant Early Line Choice At Aqueduct

New York (AP) — Locust Hill Farm's Tyrant is the early line 4-1 choice for Saturday's 71st running of the Carter Handicap for 3-year-olds and up at Aqueduct against 13 rivals.

If all go the race will be worth $59,800 with $35,880 going to the winner.

Tyrant, who will carry second high weight of 121 pounds for the seven furlongs test, has raced twice this year, including a second-place finish in the Toboggan Handicap. Bill Hartack has the mount.

Kev-Hill Stable's Shut Eye, 116, winner of the Toboggan, is the second choice at 5-1 and shoots for his fourth straight victory.

Other top contenders include Greentree Stable's Cut The Comedy, 112, Holly Crest Farm's Jaikyl, 115, and Saul Nadler's Judgale, 116, all 6-1 shots.

—HOUSTON FALLS SHORT— Mets Grab Lead With 4-3 Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The New York Mets won their fifth straight game and took over the lead in the National League East Friday night.

Ken Boswell singled home Bud Harrelson from second base to give the Mets a 4-3 victory over Houston in 12 innings. The victory, coupled with St. Louis' 4-2 triumph over Montreal, dropped the Expos out of first place.

The Cardinals, who had lost four in a row to the Mets, beat the Expos on Jose Cardenal's two-run triple in the seventh inning.

San Francisco tripped Cincinnati 7-5, Pittsburgh downed San Diego 5-3, Atlanta overcame Los Angeles 7-2 and Philadelphia shaded the Chicago Cubs 1-0.

Kansas City beat Baltimore for the first time since May 9, 1969, when Fred Patek singled home the winning run in the ninth for a 5-4 triumph over the Orioles.

The New York Yankees defeated Milwaukee 5-1, Boston beat Minnesota 4-3 and the Chicago White Sox conquered Washington 8-1 in other games.

The Giants scored three runs in the eighth to down the Reds. Bobby Bonds, who had homered earlier, singled home two of the three with the bases loaded. Richie Hebner singled home what proved to be the winning run for the Pirates in the seventh and a six-run uprising in the fifth by the Braves snapped their three-game losing streak.

Reggie Smith doubled home two runs in the eighth as the Red Sox rallied to beat Minnesota. Don Money singled home the lone Philly run that beat the Cubs in the seventh.

Steve Kline pitched a four-hitter to win for the Yankees and Bart Johnson turned in a five-hitter for the White Sox to humble the Senators.

Detroit led California 6-0 after five innings while Cleveland and Oakland were scoreless in the sixth.

Missouri Wins Big Eight Golf

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — Scott Bess shot a par-equaling 72 with nines of 37-35 for individual honors and led Missouri University to an easy team victory over four other Big Eight Conference golf teams Friday.

The teams move on to Manhattan, Kan., Saturday morning for another 18-hole team match.

Off Track Betting Exceeds $250,000

New York (AP) — More than a quarter of a million dollars has been bet on today's Kentucky Derby entries through New York City's Off-Track Betting Corp., a spokesman said Friday.

Wagering facilities were kept open until midnight, four hours after the planned closing, to accommodate the overwhelming response here to the Churchill Downs event.

The OTB spokesman said the amount wagered had not been fully totaled yet.

Are lawn weeds a growing concern with you?

You can live without 'em!

To weed as you feed . . .

Simply spread Scotts PLUS-2. It goes right to work on dandelions, plantain, clover and most other common lawn weeds. PLUS-2 makes them gradually curl up and disappear — roofs and all. At the same time PLUS-2 full-fertilizes your good grass — makes it grow greener and sturdier, filling in those places where the weeds used to be.

To weed without feeding . . .

All it takes is an easy spreader application of KANSEL. It provides the same positive weed control as Scotts PLUS-2 — without the fertilizing. So if dandelions, clover and similar weeds are a growing concern, but your lawn doesn't need fertilizing, spread KANSEL now. It will take care of the weeds before they can crowd out any more good grass.

To weed, feed & prevent crabgrass

Scotts PLUS-4 prevents crabgrass, full-fertilizes your lawn and clears out most existing weeds such as dandelions, plantain and clover. All from a single application. Now's the only time of year you can get all these benefits at once. So how about this weekend, before the crabgrass starts growing? (It will be too late then.)

Three students in the College of Engineering and Architecture at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln were presented the college's most prestigious awards at the annual E-Week Banquet Friday night at the Cornhusker Hotel.

The highest honor bestowed on a student in the college, the O. J. Ferguson Award, was presented to John E. Rosenow. Named for a former dean of the college, the award is given each year to the outstanding senior who is selected by his fellow students as having displayed the ideals of professional service and good citizenship.

Rosenow, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Rosenow of Elmwood, is majoring in agricultural engineering and has a 4.06 scholastic average (4.0 is an A). He was co-chairman of the 1970 E-Week and is a member of Innocents Society, senior men's honorary.

The Clarel B. Mapes Memorial Award went to Ronald R. Stara, son of Mrs. Marie H. Stara of David City. This award is given to the engineering student who has the highest scholastic average at the end of his freshman year. Stara, majoring in mechanical engineering, has a 3.769 average.

The Dean O. J. Ferguson Memorial Award, for the sophomore with the highest scholastic average, went to David K. Fry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Fry of Ralston. Fry is majoring in chemical

Power Outage Is Investigated

A power outage confined mainly to the downtown University and southwest areas of Lincoln Friday was due to a malfunction at the main substation at 2nd and M Sts., according to a Lincoln Electric System spokesman.

Cause of the malfunction was not known and is under investigation, the spokesman said, who added, "It shouldn't have happened but it did."

The power outage lasted approximately three to four minutes in some parts of the downtown and as long as 15 minutes from 9th St. west, including the County-City Building.

Bern, Switzerland (AP) — Fares on the Swiss National railway will increase by 12 to 13% to meet rising costs.

Fire Department Hires Eight Men; Force Is Now 119

The Lincoln Fire Department announced Friday the addition of eight new firemen, bringing the Lincoln force total to 119.

Asst. Chief Dwayne McIntyre said that the new men were hired to fill vacancies and after recently completing two-weeks basic training have been assigned to units throughout the city.

- Gary O. Little, 26, of 330 E. Michael, 26, of 6044 Sarnocki, 26, of 1155 C.
- James J. Miller, 26, of 1155 C.
- Richard Wilson, 26, of 1155 C.
- Gerald Messer, 26, of 1155 C.
- Victor A. Delany, 26, of 1155 C.
- George Amen, 21, of 129 007 Blackley, Lincoln Air Park West.
- Ronald Galois, 34, of 141 Hartley.

Lincoln Regional Center, were presented with recognition certificates Friday.

The certificates, 314 in all, were given to 142 organizations and to 172 individuals who have carried on projects for three or more months during the past year.

Organizations "adopt" wards and sponsor picnics, dances, parties, sports events and other kinds of activities, as well as donating money and tickets for roller skating, bowling, movies and other events.

Individuals teach sewing and craft classes, assist with library services, provide music and art appreciation events and assist with recreation, sports and transportation. Others become companions and visitors to the patients.

Groups honored included several church organizations, business and employe organizations, civic, social and cultural organizations and military and veterans groups.

Student volunteers, numbering 72, came from the University of Nebraska, Concordia College, Wesleyan and the Bryan School of Nursing College. East and Southeast High School students also served as volunteers.

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

"Hell, Heaven or Hoboken by Christmas," was a 1913 quote attributed to Gen. John J. Pershing.

Gen. William T. Sherman said, "War is Hell."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How to Work It

One letter simply stands for another in this example. A is used for the three L's or X's of the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper-left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

"Hell, Heaven or Hoboken by Christmas," was a 1918 quote attributed to Gen. John J. Pershing.

Glass fibers were actually first discovered by ancient Egyptians. The Egyptians drew molten glass into threads to wind around vessels as a decoration.

Gen. William T. Sherman said, "War is Hell."
